Be safe at the seaside by respecting sea's powers

SCHOOL holidays and superb summer weather have seen many of us heading for some of the beautiful beaches our county is blessed with.

Be it a day trip or a week or two, a visit to the seaside is on every kid's agenda once the summer holidays begin.

It's seen as a place to have fun and go a little wild, and the air around all beaches is filled with shouts, laughter and shrieks as youngsters splash and crash around in, on and near the sea.

But events at beaches around the country this summer have seen the shouts and shrieks of joy turned into shouts and shrieks of anguish.

The more than a dozen tragic deaths are a reminder of the power of the sea and our innate ability to deliberately forget the power of Mother Nature.

We all know the power of the sea: We've all stood with just our feet in the water and felt ourselves being moved forwards and backwards by the waves. Anyone who has ever taken a dip in the sea will have at one time or another been pushed under by the waves or found themselves tossed on to the beach like a rag doll.

The sea is not at fault, we are. We have forgotten to respect it.

There will, unfortunately, continue to be tragic accidents. The unpredictable nature of the sea means inevitably and sadly some people will be caught out.

But for those who don't respect the waves and the tides, all the life-guards in the world won't help them.

We are an island nation, the sea plays a huge part in our national identity and yet we seem to think it's a summer plaything, a benign creature there for our amusement.

Let us hope the events of recent weeks will bring things back into balance and that everyone will enjoy their seaside trips but be wary of the tides and the waves.

Enjoy your bank holiday weekend and, above all, take care.

'Lifeguards could have saved my brother's life'

By Tom Pugh

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THE younger brother of the former Bexleyheath Academy student who tragically died off the East Sussex coast earlier this week has slammed authorities for not having a lifeguard on duty.

Nitharsan Ravi, 22, has been named locally as one of the five men who lost their lives at Camber Sands, alongside Inthushan Sri, 23, Kurushanth Srithavarajah, 26, and brothers Kobi Nathan, 21, and Ken, 19.

It is believed the group of friends were on a day-trip from London.

According to his Facebook page, Mr Ravi attended the Bexleyheath Academy before going on to study at the University of Brighton.

Mr Ravi's younger brother, Ajirthan, 19, said his sibling died after trying to rescue two of his friends who had become trapped beneath the water.

"Ken and Inthushan got stuck in water," he said.

"So what they do is the three boys try to save them."

He said attempts failed and Mr Srithavarajah was brought out

TRAGIC: Nitharsan Ravi, who went to Bexleyheath Academy, died in nearby Sussex first and declared dead straight away.

"My bro and Kobi had heartbeats and managed to survive for a few minutes but after first aid they couldn't recover," he added, claiming both died within 15 minutes after being pulled from the water.

"There wasn't any lifeguards cruising around, because they would have quickly noticed these boys drowning, and could have at least saved their lives."

Mr Ravi's family said they felt "very angry" at the lack of response from the authorities following the death of another man, Brazilian Gustavo Silva Da Cruz, 19, at Camber last month.

The father of Erith brothers Ken and Kobi Nathan also voiced criticism, saying if there were lifeguards on the beach his sons may have survived.

Satthiyanathan Arumukam, 51, told The Sun: "I brought my children from Sri Lanka because it is not safe back there.

"But there were no lifeguards on the beach where they died. If there had been, my sons would have at least had a fighting chance of survival."

Council officials say temporary lifeguards will be deployed this bank holiday weekend at Camber Sands, near Rye, to "reassure the public and advise on safety".

Police urge authorities to hand over suspects of Ayia Napa stabbing

POLICE in Cyprus have asked authorities in the breakaway Turkish Cypriot north to hand over two suspects in the killing of a Dartford man and the serious wounding of another Briton in the island's coastal resort of Ayia Napa.

George Low, 22, was stabbed to death earlier this month after a scuffle, in an attack that his family said had left them "numb".

Turkish Cypriot official Hakkı Celal Onen told The Associated Press the request would be considered after the two suspects, Mehmet Akpinar, 22, and Sali Ahmet, 42, have been tried in a Turkish Cypriot military court on charges of trespassing into a military area.

The trespassing charges stem from the two men allegedly crossing into the north at least twice from areas other than the seven checkpoints that regulate pedestrian and vehicular traffic through the 120-mile United Nations-controlled buffer zone that cuts across the island.

Cyprus police said the two suspects are believed to have fled to the north and out of their reach shortly after the attack on August 14.

Akpinar's 48-year-old Greek Cypriot girlfriend told police during questioning that Akpinar admitted to her that he and Ahmet committed the stabbings after scolding the two Britons for urinating in public.

Cyprus police are treating the stabbings as premeditated and attempted murder.

Cyprus has been divided along ethnic lines since a 1974 Turkish invasion in the wake of a coup aiming at union with Greece. Authorities in the internationally recognised Greek Cypriot south do not recognise and have no control over the north and cannot make arrests there.

According to local sources, Akpinar is a Turkish national and Ahmet is believed to be a Bulgarian national.

Six men quizzed after being rescued from Channel boat

HALF a dozen suspected migrants were found in a small boat in the English Channel on Thursday.

Coastguards were alerted to the vessel off the Kent coast at around 5.40am before scrambling the Lydd-based search and rescue helicopter and the Border Force cutter, HMC Valiant.

A Home Office spokesman said: "Six men were recovered from the boat and are due to be interviewed by Border Force officers."

Meanwhile, Kent Police shot down claims by the right-wing EDL Coastal Patrol that it is working alongside the force to "protect our shores".

"We only work with partners such as the Border Force, Coastguard and RNLI when it comes to policing our coastline," police said.

Dealer jailed after cocaine worth £200k found in car

A DEALER caught with two kilos of cocaine in his car whilst driving along the A249 near Sittingbourne has been jailed.

Nicholas Bubb, 26, of Esparto Way, South Darenth, admitted he intended to sell on the class-a drug, worth around £200,000 after being stopped by police at around 3pm on June 23.

Inside his car, officers found the cocaine, wrapped inside a bag with 'Amsterdam' written on it as well as mobile phones, scales and tick lists containing names and numbers at his address.

He was jailed for four years when he appeared in court on Tuesday.

"I'm pleased he has been handed a suitable prison sentence," a detective said.

County baker rises to top on BBC programme

BECKENHAM'S baking star Jane Beedle was the first contestant to win the title of Star Baker as the Great British Bake Off returned to our screens on Wednesday.

The 61-year-old beat stiff competition for the opening cake-themed week, to receive praise from judges Paul Hollywood and Mary Berry.

When not in the kitchen, the mother-of-two designs gardens for a living, but her passion for baking comes from her grandfather who owned a bakery in Hastings. Erith's Rav also walked through to the next round.

Lee was the first competitor to be sent home, after three disappointing cakes failed to wow the judges.

Both Jane and Rav will be appearing in next week's episode.

COMMENDED: No 31 in Thanet

Aladdin's Cave named third best beach hut

AN EAST Kent beach hut has been highly commended as one of the top three in Britain.

No 31, in West Bay, near Westgate-on-Sea, is owned by Lili Sanchez, and has been described as 'Aladdin's cave', due to its brimming walls filled with kitsch collectibles.

The hut even hosts Ms Sanchez' annual Christmas party for her family.

Two huts in the competition received highly commended status, with No 31 being accompanied by Buggleskelly in East Sussex, both losing out to this year's winner – My Happy Hut in Dovercourt, Essex.

The judging panel included Phil Spencer, co-presenter of popular daytime programme Location, Location, Location, historian and author Dr. Kathryn Ferry, beach hut designer Pete Samson, journalist Charlotte Vowden and last year's winner Jane Ashmore.

Towergate Insurance's competition received entries from across the country each vying to be crowned winner and Mr Spencer said: "There were some exceptional entries this year and the judges were spoilt for choice."

"No 31 really stood out for its intriguing interior, and sentimental value to Lili, her loved ones, and beach hut community. Congratulations Lili."

Ukip donor accuses MP of helping Conservatives defeat Farage in election

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

A SENIOR Ukip figure has accused the party's only MP of conspiring with the Conservatives to ensure Nigel Farage lost the battle for South Thanet in last year's general election.

A company belonging to Arron Banks, Ukip's biggest donor, has written to Kent Police alleging that Douglas Carswell helped the Tory campaign, ultimately won by Craig Mackinlay, in 2015.

Precision Risk & Intelligence claims that Mr Carswell downloaded Ukip polling data for the South Thanet seat and passed it to the Conservatives, who allegedly used it during the campaign.

The letter sent to Kent Police says: "We have evidence of excessive spending by the Conservatives and secretive dealings between them and a senior Ukip representative to collude against Mr Farage."

Mr Carswell was unavailable for comment but responding to the Guardian, he said: "There is no basis in these claims whatsoever."

"We should just be relieved that those responsible for the disastrous campaign in South Thanet were not responsible for the successful referendum campaign."

A police spokesperson said: "Kent Police received a letter on August 23 regarding our on-going investigation into election spending."

"The letter will be passed to the investigators for their consideration."

The force is also currently investigating claims that Conservatives breached spending laws in South Thanet last year.

A probe was launched by the Electoral Commission off the back of allegations made by Channel 4 that reported spending on the Royal Harbour Hotel in Ramsgate and Premier Inn in Margate was not national campaign spending and therefore should not have been included in the party's expenses return.

It has the power to impose a fine of up to £20,000 if it feels a breach was made.

The Conservatives, and Mr Mackinlay, have long denied any wrongdoing, claiming all spending was correctly recorded in accordance with the law.

Almost 250,000 visit unique ship display

AN EXHIBITION of unique photographs and artefacts of the world's most famous ship came to a close on Sunday after attracting well over 200,000 visitors.

The Titanic exhibition was held at Royal Victoria Place shopping centre in Tunbridge Wells between July 23 and August 21 and was only its second opening in the UK and its first in Kent.

It has now packed up and set sail to tour South America and the US after appealing to visitors of all ages from across the county and beyond.

During its opening weekend 'Titanic In Photographs' attracted nearly 16,000 visitors and throughout its four week stay at RVP, a total of over 232,000 visitors came to see the exhibition with some days seeing up to an 11 per cent year-on-year increase in daily footfall.

Marc Burchett, marketing manager, said: "The feedback we have received from visitors has been amazing with many commenting that they found it to be both fascinating and very emotive."

Temperatures hit 34 as heatwave peaks

GRAVESEND was home to the highest temperature of the year in the UK on Wednesday as a heatwave hit Kent this week.

Temperatures hit 33.9C in the north of the county, topping the 33.5C recorded in Oxfordshire on July 19.

With more people flocking to beaches as the heat increases, the RNLI has urged visitors to take care and respect the water, particularly after five people died at nearby Camber Sands in Sussex.

Helicopters from Lydd and rescue teams from Dungeness attended the scene.

An RNLI spokeswoman said: "The sea may look appealing, and the RNLI would encourage people to use it, but do so safely – it can be dangerously unpredictable."

"Please visit lifeguarded beaches and swim between the red and yellow flags - the safe swim zone and the area watched by lifeguards."

"Lifeguards are happy to answer any questions, including where any rip currents may be, which can catch out even the most experienced swimmers."

Teens to face trial for brutal street murder

A JUDGE has set a trial date for four young men accused of murdering a teenager in south London.

Andre Aderemi, 19, from Chatham, was "brutally stabbed several times," in Heather Way, South Croydon, according to witnesses last Tuesday before dying in hospital.

Jamall Longergan, Fabio Cela and Rodney Mukasa, all 19, appeared at the Old Bailey on Tuesday over the killing.

Judge Michael Topolski set a provisional trial date of February 13, 2017 with a plea hearing on November 8.

Cela and Mukasa, of Croydon, and Longergan, of Thornton Heath, south London, spoke only to confirm their names.

No application for bail was made and they were remanded in custody.

A fourth teenager, Ali Zahawy, 18, is expected to appear before the same court later this week.

Mr Aderemi's sister, Sheniqua, said her brother had "a priceless heart".

Nine months of chaos finally over as rail line set to re-open

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

COMMUTERS in the south of the county have faced travel chaos in recent months but the disruption comes to a close in two weeks as a crucial line on the rails re-opens ahead of schedule.

Engineers at Network Rail initially feared the line between Dover and Folkestone would be out of action for a year after it closed on Christmas Eve following extensive damage to the sea wall at Shakespeare beach.

Since then, a nine-month £40m project has got underway to build a new 235-metre-long viaduct supported by more than 130 concrete columns to ensure passengers from Dover, Deal, Walmer, Sandwich and Martin Mill will soon be able to use a full train service again from Monday, September 5.

Throughout the duration of the work at Dover, a new timetable was put in place with a day and night bus service running to ensure passengers could keep moving.

Passengers who use the line between Dover and Folkestone were also offered a compensation package along with free car parking permits at Folkestone West whilst the line was closed.

While the railway has been closed between Dover and Folkestone, Network Rail has invested an additional £3.5m to make the line more resilient.

BREAKTHROUGH: The line between Folkestone and Dover

The work has included brickwork repairs on Shakespeare, Abbotscliffe and Martello tunnels, 2.4km of new track, and drainage work in Abbotscliffe tunnel.

Network Rail chief executive Mark Carne, said: "This project is a huge achievement for all involved and I'm extremely proud of what has been done by those who have been working on the project since December.

"Finishing this project three months ahead of schedule is a reflection of the continuous hard work that has been taking place here, setting the standard expected at Network Rail.

"We face some big challenges in the coming years but with the skills and the dedication on show here at Dover I know we will face them head on."

However, there is still follow-up work to complete on September 11, October 2 and October 9 to ensure a smooth delivery.

Unidentified bodies date back 45 years

MORE than two dozen unidentified dead bodies, some of which date back almost half a century, are on the books of Kent Police.

The oldest case is the remains of a male believed to be aged between 30 and 50 found washed ashore at Lydd-on-Sea back in 1971.

The most recent, meanwhile, was the discovery of a male body aged between 40 and 60 in the water off Ramsgate Harbour in September 2013.

Inferno rips through car body workshop

EXTENSIVE damage has been caused to a car body workshop in Broadstairs following a fire at Copperleaf Business Park.

Up to 30 per cent of the unit is believed to have been destroyed in the fire, while the remainder suffered heat and smoke damage. Adjacent units suffered light smoke damage.

'A dream come true'

A FOOTBALL-MAD youngster has said it was "a dream come true" to lead out his favourite team at Wembley Stadium earlier this month.

Max Knight, 8, from Ashford, stepped out in front of 80,000 fans alongside Manchester United's Antonio Valencia before the FA Cup winners triumphed over Premier League champions Leicester to lift the Community Shield.

Campaign urges chancellor to set up monitoring body

A CRANBROOK-BASED campaign fighting for lower petrol and diesel prices is calling on Theresa May's new chancellor to set up a monitoring body for fairer and more transparent pricing at the pumps.

FairFuelUK is widely credited with stopping more than £57 billion of fuel duty being levied on businesses and the public since 2011, and bosses have now written to Philip Hammond, asking him to go further and be bolder than his predecessor at No 11, George Osborne.

A letter was delivered by hand to the Treasury and the prime minister's office this week, in which the campaign asks to cut duty on all fuels by 3p, slash VAT to 15 per cent, introduce more incentives for motorists to move to cleaner fuels and to set up an 'OfPump' monitoring body to halt the fluctuating fuel prices experienced by drivers every day.

Howard Cox, founder of the FairFuelUK campaign, said: "It's time for the government to truly deliver on the PM's laudable intentions and help millions of hard working families, small businesses and the haulage industry to prosper."

Staggering stats behind historic market revamp

AFTER more than 620 cups of tea, 17,000 roof tiles and 34,000 copper nails, Gravesend's historic market is almost ready for business.

With less than 100 days to go until the market reopens, Gravesham Borough Council has revealed some of the figures behind the £1.8million refurbishment project.

Set to reopen on November 19, the market, which closed last summer, has existed in the town since 1268.

The project is currently in its sixth month, and has seen more than 50 workers and staff on site, working a combined total of 6,485 hours from January to July.

Early plans for the indoor marketEarly plans for the indoor market

Among the features in the new-look market is a glass ceiling made from 96 sheets of glass weighing a combined total of more than 7.2 tonnes.

Cabinet member for business delivery, Samir Jassal praised the market's potential impact.

"The work to the market is really moving forward quickly. These stats are a bit of fun but it does highlight how much work has been done so far and just how big this project is for the town.

"The market will bring a significant improvement to the town centre and having had lots of memories sent through from various people from over the years who enjoyed the old market, it's hoped this one will have the same effect on stall holders and visitors."

Fracas ends in stabbing

A SCUFFLE involving up to 30 people in Dartford ended with a man being stabbed in the back.

A 25-year-old man was taken to a local hospital and discharged later the same day after receiving serious but non-life threatening injuries on Saturday.

Jones turns up the heat

UKIP leadership hopeful Liz Jones stepped up her bid to replace Nigel Farage by setting out her plans for the party this week.

The Dartford family lawyer is something of an outsider in the race to become leader, with south east MEP and former Rochester schoolgirl Diane James looking the favourite.

Further strikes on rails

WORKERS at Southern Rail are set to take another two days of strike action following an ongoing dispute with the company over the changing roles of guards on trains.

The rail workers' union RMT has organised strikes for Wednesday, September 7 and Thursday, September 8.

Trial in youth jail scandal

A MAIDSTONE woman is to stand trial after being charged with common assault following an undercover BBC Panorama investigation into Medway Secure Training Centre in Rochester.

New ways to tackle radicalisation

One of the county's biggest mosques – based in Gillingham – has thrown its support behind new government select committee recommendations to reshape how communities tackle radicalisation

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

ONE of Kent's biggest mosques has supported recommendations by a government select committee to reshape the way communities tackle radicalisation.

Only this month, Welling-born preacher Anjem Choudary was convicted of encouraging support for terrorists following a trial at the Old Bailey.

The 49-year-old is believed to have been a recruiter and radicaliser for years but managed to avoid being arrested despite widespread knowledge of his influence on terrorists.

The Prevent strategy was launched in 2007 as the preventative strand of the government's counter-terrorism strategy, Contest.

In 2011 the agenda was relaunched to respond to the ideological challenge of terrorism and aspects of extremism, provide practical help to prevent people from being drawn into terrorism and ensure they are given appropriate advice and support.

However, a Home Affairs Committee report published this week revealed significant concerns about Prevent and the way it is enforced among communities.

MPs said that the Prevent strategy must be reviewed to produce a new and different inclusive approach that is much more transparent — and it should be renamed Engage, to attempt to remove its already "toxic" associations in the Muslim community.

Allaying these concerns and building trust will require full and wide engagement with all sections of the Muslim community, including at grassroots level — and not just with groups which already agree with the government, they said.

The suggestions were backed by Anwar Khan, of the Kent Muslim Welfare Association, based at Gillingham Mosque, who agreed a change in approach was needed.

"We have had concerns in the past, there was one young man who was raising some suspicion," he told KoS.

"The problem starts with someone doing something differently or not attending the mosque or their school like they used to.

"So we always keep an eye out and the key is of course to try and address it as early as possible and we encourage others to keep a look out and talk with us.

"In that instance after we did, everything was okay.

"But I resisted Prevent when it first came in because the attitude was that it was looking for Muslims who will spy on the households of other Muslims.

"The whole approach was wrong and I resisted the police too, though once we started working together I found they were fantastic, but there needs to be more mutual consultation."

RECRUITER: Radical preacher Anjem Choudary

MPs also demanded the government facilitate regular meetings of the leaders of the UK's Muslim communities, claiming "these steps can contribute to an effective counter-narrative".

The support made available to families of individuals who travel abroad to join terrorist organisations was described as "lamentable" and the committee said there needs to be an easily accessible advice and counselling service, particularly for parents, who wish to raise concerns and ask for help when worried about their loved ones being radicalised.

"As a minimum, the government must change the name of the 'anti-terrorist helpline' which can be seen as too stigmatising and makes people apprehensive about expressing their worries," MPs said.

Communities themselves were also called on to take a leadership role in tackling the issue head-on, with the committee suggesting the Muslim Council of Britain could do more to expose and remove those who preach or advocate race hate and intolerance, and particularly those who draw young people into extremism.

Mr Khan added: "I think we do lead, we work closely with the police and the council and we are proactive in keeping an eye on people.

"We have written a comprehensive letter to the education secretary and are constantly trying to raise awareness not just amongst Muslims but all faiths."

Kent County Council appears to also be preparing to work on a revamped scheme, after the report found that support from local authorities, Prevent coordinators and the police was inconsistent.

KCC chiefs were coy on specific details at this early stage but a spokesman told KoS this week: "As the lead authority on the government's Prevent programme in the county, KCC has been co-ordinating work with district councils and other public bodies and partners on developing a strategy in line with the government's objectives.

"The county has been selected to participate in a new Home Office pilot initiative and a funding bid has been submitted to supplement the team in preparation for that.

"Details of that initiative and the ongoing countywide strategy will be announced in the near future."

The report also recommends that the Metropolitan Police's Counter Terrorism Internet Referral Unit (CTIRU) should be upgraded into a high-tech, state-of-the-art, round-the-clock, central 'Operational Hub' which locates the perils early, moves quickly to block them and is able to instantly share the sensitive information with other security agencies.

Quizzed on the possibility of Kent Police also being upgraded in terms of resources and responsibility to combat terrorism, the force told KoS it would be too soon to pass comment on mere suggestions.

A spokesperson said: "Kent Police works with local authorities, schools, education establishments and national bodies to both identify cases of potential radicalisation, and reduce the risk of it happening.

"Kent Police recently worked with the University of Kent to design a piece of software that simulates a social media website.

"The software can be used by teachers in the classroom to help educate pupils on extremism, radicalisation and internet safety.

"The public can also play their part in keeping the country safe from terrorism by being aware of signs of radicalisation, and reporting any concerns to the police."

The software referenced is 'Zak' — a social media style simulation set up by the university in 2013, enabling young people to protect themselves and their peers against online grooming and radicalisation.

As they follow Zak's posts and messages, and become immersed in the social media activities, they learn to analyse to spot early signs of grooming.

Detailed answers and links to research in the comprehensive training pack provide background, insight and ongoing support.

The software has proved a huge success and has been rolled out in a number of schools across the county over the last three years.

Gillingham and Rainham MP Rehman Chishti, a Muslim himself, was presented with a gong at the Asian Voice Political and Public Life Awards back in March after leading a campaign which successfully convinced the government to officially adopt the term 'Daesh' when referring to the terrorist group widely referred to as "the so-called Islamic State".

It was supported by 170 MPs from across the political spectrum and this week's report also highlighted a responsibility of the media to also refer to the group as Daesh in future reporting.

Mr Chishti was contacted for comment by KoS but was unavailable.

As migrant numbers rise fears grow over human trafficking

As the gateway to Europe, our county is no stranger to the efforts of migrants to gain entry illegally but there is concern some may be suffering slavery, sexual exploitation or domestic servitude...

By Adele Couchman

adele.couchman@archant.co.uk

THERE is still "a huge problem" in recognising victims of human trafficking, an academic has warned, after more were found in Kent last year than nearly everywhere else in the UK.

Some 88 potential victims were forwarded on to the National Referral Mechanism (NRM) last year, a process set up by the government to identify and support those who have been trafficked in Britain.

Kent was ranked eighth for the highest number of suspected human trafficking victims out of a total of 45 police force areas according to the National Crime Agency (NCA).

The grim statistics come as The Salvation Army announced earlier this week it has seen nearly a fivefold increase in slavery victims it has helped in England and Wales since 2012.

The charity said more than 1,800 people were given support between April 2015 and March 2016, up from 378 between July 2011 and June 2012 – its first year of operating the government contract to support victims.

Almost half had been sexually exploited, 42 per cent were subject to forced labour and a further 13 per cent were victims of domestic servitude.

Unsurprisingly, the problem in Kent has been linked with the county's migrant crisis – with Dover MP Charlie Elphicke earlier this week calling for stronger borders to stop the influx of people who could be trafficked from the Calais Jungle.

University of Kent PHD student Elena Krstanovic has expressed similar worries about the vulnerability of refugees and asylum seekers after witnessing migrants arriving in Serbia whilst working for a anti-trafficking charity.

"Of course people travelling through dangerous routes trying to get to countries are under much greater risk," she told KoS.

"Whilst they are travelling, many who are desperate to escape their origins will have to pay off debts to their smugglers.

"They're not in a position to say no to work; no matter how dehumanising it might be.

"When they've reached their destination, there have been many cases of people working in the illegal sector until they get asylum.

"When someone doesn't have proper documentation it leaves them much more likely to be exploited underhand."

After helping survivors for the Serbian charity ASTRA, the 27-year-old criminology researcher is keen that people understand what trafficking involves so victims can be identified and receive the support they need.

ON THE RISE: The Salvation Army announced this week it had seen nearly a fivefold increase in slavery victims in England and Wales since 2012

"There's a huge problem with people not having the capacity to recognise victims, so there may be many out there who could be missed and not taken care of," she said.

"Cases are not always sexual and violent like the media makes out – someone could still be suffering without cuts and bruises."

Earlier in June, a judge ruled in favour of six Lithuanian migrants who said they had been trafficked as chicken catchers for a Maidstone firm.

Speaking of their ordeal, the men said they had been forced to work in inhuman and degrading conditions and threatened by supervisors with fighting dogs.

For many migrants, the future lies in not only brothels but also car washes and fruit fields to enable them to pay off their debts for what they believed would be a better life.

With more than 1,000 unaccompanied child refugees arriving on our shores last year, Kent County Council (KCC) says it is very mindful about the possibility of trafficking and ensure checks are in place but concedes activity at Dover is what may be pushing up the figures.

"It is KCC's legal responsibility to care for under-18s who arrive in the county from abroad, seeking asylum. "As a matter of course, when new arrivals come into the care of KCC, we refer those Unaccompanied Asylum Seeking Children that have been identified at particular risk of being trafficked to the NCA.

"This could include certain countries of origin, such as Vietnam, stories that are suspicious, or if they are in receipt of large sums of money.

"Because of the high number of Unaccompanied Asylum Seeking Children coming into the county through Dover, this will inevitably make the figure for Kent higher, but does not necessarily mean they have been trafficked.

"We work closely with the Home Office and the police to disrupt trafficking activity and to protect and safeguard any individuals who are deemed to be at risk."

A Kent Police spokesperson added: "We have made significant advances in educating and training officers and staff to look out for the warning signs of human trafficking and modern slavery and that, coupled with the county's geographical position as the gateway to Europe, are the key reasons why we see more potential victims than other forces.

"Kent Police is also in the process of developing a new training course that focuses on safeguarding, investigation and prosecution for senior investigating officers and it is hoped that this will be jointly delivered by the CPS and result in an increasing amount of successful convictions for offences covered by the new Modern Slavery Act 2015.

"An assistant chief constable from the force also chairs a newly-created Kent Anti-Slavery Partnership which brings together the various partner agencies and charitable organisations in order that victims can be protected and offenders prosecuted."

JUNCKER 'HOPELESSLY OUT OF TOUCH,' CLAIMS DOVER MP

THE president of the European Commission has been slammed as "hopelessly out of touch" by a Kent MP.

It comes in a row over national borders, such as the Le Touquet agreement between England and France, which Brussels' top official Jean-Claude Juncker described as "the worst invention ever".

However, Dover MP Charlie Elphicke has rubbished the European chief's claims, and insisted the border between his constituency and Calais across the Channel was fundamental to Britain's security.

He told KoS: "Clearly Mr Juncker is hopelessly out of touch with the concerns of citizens across Europe.

"The Schengen area of free movement doesn't work for anyone, meanwhile the border with Dover and Calais is far stronger and ensures we are maintaining more control than they are on the continent.

"It's welcome to see some improvements made, but more needs to be done.

"We need to have a Dover patrol to keep the Channel secure, we need to have the Jungle [camp housing thousands of migrants in Calais] dismantled and we need to clamp down on traffickers."

Sources close to Theresa May, who last month met with French President Francois Hollande and announced that the Le Touquet agreement would remain despite Brexit, also said Mr Juncker's comments were "not something that the prime minister would agree with."

Her official spokesperson added: "You have heard the Prime Minister talk about the views that the British people expressed in the referendum.

"The British people think that borders are important, having more control over our borders is important, and that is an issue we need to address."

Security has certainly been stepped up since last summer, when hundreds of migrants stormed the Channel Tunnel, causing disruption to services and leading to delays and cancellations.

However, a Home Affairs Select Committee report last month said the number of Border Force vessels in operation was "worryingly low" and recommended the use of Royal Navy vessels to make up for the shortfall.

THUMB'S UP: It was all smiles for these pupils at Tonbridge's Hayesbrook School

The wait is over for the county's GCSE students

Thursday saw apprehensive pupils opening the envelopes of their dreaded exam results letters...

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

KENT'S schools are continuing to perform well despite grades appearing to fall on a nationwide basis.

Girls continue to outperform boys at GCSE, according to results released on Thursday, but figures by the Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ) showed both genders' grades were down on last year.

A*-C grades were achieved by 71.3 per cent of girls this summer compared with 62.4 per cent of boys, however both were down on last year, from 73.1 per cent and 64.7 per cent respectively.

Girls also outperform boys in terms of achieving the very top grades - with 7.9 per cent getting an A*, compared with five per cent although both saw a slight decline.

In the county, however, there was plenty of cause for celebration, with many schools achieving their best ever results.

At Sevenoaks School, 92 per cent of the examinations taken by the 151 candidates were awarded A* or A grades.

Some 59 students - over a third of the year group - gained ten A's or more each, and 128 students gained 9 or more A* or A grades, while all but twenty eight results out of 1549 examinations were awarded grade B or above.

Head, Dr Katy Ricks, said: "These results are excellent, and a superb achievement for both students and teachers."

Ashford's North School, meanwhile, praised the dedication of staff, the support of parents and the determination of its students after achieving its best ever set of GCSE results.

The North has seen what headteacher Nicki Hodges described as "a huge improvement" in results across the board, praising the "colossal" efforts of staff and "100 per cent buy in" from the current cohort of GCSE students, who more than doubled last year's haul of A* to C grades in English and maths by taking it to 54 per cent.

Similarly, Cobham Hall also celebrated its best ever results, with an A*-C pass rate of 98 per cent, 50 per cent of grades being A* or A and 75 per cent achieving A*-B.

"Cobham Hall is not an academically selective school but we show what can be achieved by hard working pupils and dedicated teachers working in small classes in a positive environment," headmaster Mr Mitchell said.

"They have been ably supported by our superb pastoral staff and the pupils' parents and all thoroughly deserve their success."

The Leigh University Technical College in Dartford also enjoyed success in its first year of results, as principal Steve Leahey explained.

"Excellent progress has been made by students from disadvantaged backgrounds as well as those with special educational needs," he said.

"One of our core aims is to get more girls into engineering and IT, our girls have excelled this year and will be future role models for those choosing STEM [Science, Technology, Engineering and Maths] careers."

"Following on from the excellent Post 16 results last week, and the large number of students being employed in jobs within engineering and IT or going to university, we are delighted."

Second bite at 'grammar' cherry?

Potential A-levels students from non-selectives may be looking for a Sixth Form place at a grammar school but as former headteacher and education expert Peter Read explains, it might not be that easy...

LAST year the two Thanet grammar schools, Dane Court and Chatham & Clarendon, admitted 124 students from non-selective (NS) schools into their Sixth Forms, whilst the two grammars in Folkestone took in just five between them.

Dartford Grammar School recruited 107 new students but just two from NS schools.

King Ethelbert's School saw 48 students transfer to grammar school Sixth Forms, although four other NS schools had no such transfers.

On the surface, an average intake of 16 NS students across the county for the Sixth Forms of the 32 grammar schools looks healthy, and I have always argued that the opportunity for a second chance to join a grammar school, in the Sixth Form, is a necessary criterion for a successful Selective System across the county.

However, this average hides a massive variation, as too many grammar schools focus on recruiting the very top scorers in their chase for league table places.

Alternatives for taking A-levels, the key route to university and many professions, are shrinking with three of the four Further Education colleges now having abandoned courses, focusing on vocational pathways.

However, there are 18 non-selective schools who run Sixth Forms with more than 50 students who took A-levels in 2015, all but one achieving respectable A-level grades.

Largest were: Bennett Memorial (152 students); Hillview Girls (133); Fulston Manor (108); Homewood (103); and St Simon Stock (92).

Compare these with the smallest grammar school, Barton Court, with just 76 A-level students.

The three top scoring NS schools on average point score per A-level entry are in order: Mascalls; Westlands; and Bennett Memorial, all scoring better than five of the grammar schools.

Many of the NS schools offer a mixed menu of A-level and vocational courses to their students allowing them to keep their options open.

One other school that stands out is the non-selective Canterbury Academy, which had the largest Sixth Form in Kent, with 589 students last September.

Astonishingly it had the third largest increase in numbers of any Kent school from Year 11 to Year 12,

SYSTEM: Expert Peter Read argues a second chance to join a grammar school is vital for a selective system up by 91, the only NS school in the county to show any increase.

Most of these students are following its wide range of highly successful vocational courses.

A number of these NS schools are clearly taking in students from others where there may not be the same range of opportunities.

Currently financial pressures on

Sixth Forms have seen many others reduce the number of courses on offer, also the reason why three out of four Further Education colleges have abandoned A-levels.

One major problem is that Kent, with its wide geographical spread, sees each locality offering a different range of options at post 16.

Under new government legislation all young people are required to stay in learning or training until the age of 18, but this can include full-time study in school or college, part time education or training with work or volunteering, or taking up an apprenticeship or training.

Kent County Council is required to enforce this but has no power to ensure the courses are provided.

So in Thanet, with the East Kent College having abandoned its A-level offering, and just two of the five NS selective schools offering small A-level groups, there is little alternative to the grammar schools for A-level courses, although they have welcomed the opportunity with open arms.

In Dartford, the four grammar schools admit just 28 non-selective students between them, the two Dartford Grammars chasing high grades and the two Wilmingtons having little room to expand.

Perhaps as a result, most of the NS schools have thriving A-level provision. However, Ebbsfleet Academy which has no Sixth Form saw just four students transfer to grammar school, probably in Gravesend.

However, the most interesting district has to be Canterbury, with the two Langton Grammars taking in 43 NS students between them, whilst Barton Court Grammar admitted just four.

Altogether Simon Langton Boys saw the second largest increase in numbers in the country, rising from SUCCESS: Thamesview School's George Broadhurst was one of thousands across the county who enjoyed top grades, but what's next for students like him?

Year 11, by 92 students to a total of 222 in Year 12.

Simon Langton Girls' Grammar School saw its roll slip sharply from 152 in Year 11 last year, to 122 in Year 12, in spite of an influx of 16 girls from non-selective schools.

Barton Court Grammar, also in Canterbury, saw its Year 12 wither to 93 students, from 126 in Year 11, although it only attracted (or wanted?) just four students from NS schools.

It certainly appears that as well as its positive attitude to NS students, there is a considerable transfer of grammar school students to the boys' school, a phenomenon that is repeated in some other towns.

One would assume that the overwhelming majority of children entering grammar school at age 11 would anticipate completing a seven year course to A-level there.

However, this is not always the case, with some remarkable fall out rates including the examples above.

However, the biggest fall was at Folkestone School for Girls, which rightly prides itself on its table topping A-level grades.

It managed to lose an overall 37 students, attracting just four NS girls to compensate. Why and where did so many girls choose to leave the school after their GCSEs?

So what does all this mean for those receiving their GCSE results this week?

For those with a statistical bent, there is plenty of data out there to indicate which the best schools are in terms of academic progress from GCSE to A-level.

But where does everyone else turn for objective advice?

I recall when I was chairman of what was then an Independent Kent Careers Service, we had independent staff based in various centres throughout Kent, and providing advice in each school so able to put flesh on some of the questions I hope this article has posed.

The Careers Service has long since gone, and much of the advice in Kent is now provided by the school itself, theoretically required to be independent, but many schools will always have an interest in guiding the outcome.

Are you embarrassed by your teeth?

Get your confidence back with no downtime with this new Dental Implant system!

Dr Pieter Claassen of Hanover House, a local dental clinic is experiencing high demand for dental implants due to an advanced technique called PRGF which they offer to patients that are having dental implants.

This new system encourages healing at an accelerated rate which means patients are able to go about their normal, everyday life without any or very little down-time.

Patients travel from all over, demanding this unique treatment which is also being used to help sportsmen and women speed up the healing process following injury. PRGF stands for Plasma Rich Growth Factors, - referred to as accelerated healing by the Hanover House dental implant team.

The Problem

If you are one of the thousands of people suffering from missing or painful teeth you do not need to be reminded that it is very likely you will experience any or all of the following problems.

- Not being able to eat what you want
- Having to use fixative several times a day which is difficult to remove from your denture
- Your confidence has dropped
- You don't enjoy food anymore because of the denture covering the roof of your mouth
- You find yourself talking with your hand in front of your mouth to either stop a loose denture from moving or to hide an embarrassing gap

Pieter Claassen - Implant Dentist at Hanover House Dental in Tonbridge

- When did you last smile?
- You have bone loss where the denture is pressing on underlying bone
- You can often hear a 'funny sound' when the denture chews against another denture or teeth
- You have as constant fear you will lose or break your dentures
- Dogs love chewing dentures that lie unattended.

The excitement

For most of us suffering from ill-fitting denture, painful or loose teeth, all of the problems can be eliminated through the use of dental implants.

Dr Claassen says, "Most patients normally have dental implants to stabilise loose and uncomfortable dentures or to replace embarrassing missing teeth. Having fixed teeth again means that they can eat and enjoy the food they want and have the confidence to smile in family photos again."

PRGF is 100% Natural

The system is the magic solution that helps to speed up the healing process after the procedure, promoting our own unique healing factors to burst into action. Using the revolutionary PRGF system also increases the success rate.

For the first time ever Hanover House Dental Practice are offering the PRGF system completely free of charge when a dental implant is placed. Normally this amazing new treatment would cost £350.00 but for a limited period only Dr Claassen is offering it for FREE!

Clinical Results

In a study of 1391 dental implant placements using PRGF, the success rate was 99.6%. This shows just how special PRGF is, and as our free introductory gift to you, Dr Claassen wants to provide it free of charge - but not for long. In fact, you only have until Friday 2nd September 2016 to take up this offer!

Patients who have osteoporosis often receive medication to strengthen their bones. Unfortunately, in some cases it can lead to the opposite - impaired healing of bone structure. PRGF is excellent for patients potentially at risk of dental implant failure, shortening the time it takes for the body to accept your implants.

The Benefits

There are many benefits when a patient chooses to have dental implants and using the PRGF system only increases those benefits...

Below are just a few;

1. Faster healing time; Less down time
2. Reduced pain and swelling
3. No one will know unless you want them too!
4. Natural healing from your healing factors
5. Get back your quality of life

How it works

PRGF - Plasma Rich Growth Factor is a 100% natural product specific and unique to each patient. A small amount of blood is placed in a centrifuge and separated in different layers. Only the parts, rich in growth factors are then used and applied onto the implant and the surrounding areas in the mouth.

In the several years PRGF have been used in different medical fields there has never been a reported side effect.

What people say

"Pieter worked painstakingly to achieve the perfect finish. The dental implants have given me back my smile and confidence and I no longer have to worry about what I eat"

Mrs. P. Mahoney - Speldhurst

"Having dental implants was well worth the effort and the difference was extraordinary, making it the best decision I ever made. I used to be self-conscious about my teeth. I wouldn't eat in public in case my dentures fell out and I hated how they felt in my mouth. Since having dental implants I am so much happier. I can eat what I want, when I want, including apples and I am much more confident. Even my friends have commented on how happy and relaxed I look."

Stephen Barnham - Tonbridge

Ken, a patients of Dr Claassen at Hanover House Dental Practice says... "I wasn't certain about going down this route but now feel SMILES better!" which is evident in his before and after treatment photos.

FIGHT: Demonstrators in Ramsgate this week were surprised to see an increased number of police officers in force for the transport of live animals to the port

Police presence slammed as live export protests start to heat up

Campaigners again made their voice heard in Ramsgate ahead of a weekend of rallying against the controversial trade, but was the huge turnout of police officers justified given its limited resources?

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS opposed to the live animal export trade from Ramsgate have slammed Kent Police for “wasting” resources after almost one hundred officers helped ease the transportation of sheep to the port this week.

Cuts to the force's budget have been well-documented, and demonstrators in Thanet have argued that its thin resources could be better deployed than policing what they describe as a peaceful protest.

Hundreds of campaigners lined the streets of Ramsgate in an attempt to block lorries transporting some 2,500 sheep to Calais via the port, but the increased police presence made their opposition difficult to enforce.

Former Thanet councillor and leading campaigner Ian Driver told KoS: “There were more police than I have ever seen before – clearly they had changed their tactics and I would estimate there were a hundred there, so it was almost one-to-one between them and us.

“They threw a cordon around the lorries so protesters couldn’t get close and halt their progress. As a result they were through quite quickly, unlike before.

“It’s strange that the Kent Police budget is under enormous strain and I don’t think this is at all where they should be using those resources.

“We are peaceful protesters and we have a democratic right to do so and to have that many officers there was a complete overreaction by Kent Police because nothing has changed in terms of what we do.

“They have told us previously at meetings that each shipment costs around £19,000 to police, but with this presence it must be more like £29,000.

“A lot of the protesters are women and a lot, myself included, are elderly and it’s all very peaceful so I don’t understand why the force is wasting resources on this when it’s made no secret of its tight budget.

“I can only assume some intense pressure from the exporters has motivated this sort of response.”

However, Kent Police has defended its response, as a spokesperson for the force told KoS: “Police resources for this type of operation are continually assessed, based on information available to us prior to an event.

“Kent Police responds to every incident appropriately and proportionately in order to facilitate lawful trade, peaceful protest, prevent crime and disorder and ensure public safety.”

Mr Driver recently warned of a surge in activity at the port, with exporters looking to take advantage of the weak pound and make a quick profit before Brexit takes effect.

South Thanet MP Craig Mackinlay earlier this year blamed “the big boot of the EU” for blocking Britain’s ability to ban the trade, and said leaving the EU would allow greater control.

He also revealed he will again look to present an emergency bill to the Commons, similar to the bid he made earlier in the year, with a second reading expected to take place in the autumn.

The hope is that the bill will become law but it is dependent on Britain withdrawing from the EU.

The drama at the port comes ahead of a weekend of action against the trade, with a Green Party MEP for the south east throwing his weight behind campaign groups.

Keith Taylor will be speaking at the first ever global day of action, called Animals are Not Freight, on Monday, which sees hundreds of campaigners from more than 30 countries uniting to take action, including a peaceful protest on Parliament Square in London.

The day marks 20 years since the world’s worst live export disaster when nearly 70,000 sheep burned or drowned to death as the ship carrying them burst into flames in the Indian Ocean and sank.

Some twenty-eight organisations around the world are joining ranks for the day to host rallies, marches, and talks – from London to Paris and Tel Aviv to Sydney.

Celebrity support comes from Downton Abbey star and animal welfare activist, Peter Egan, who has helped to promote the day of action by starring in a short online film.

The Kent Against Live Exports group had planned a similar demonstration in Ramsgate on Saturday.

Mr Taylor, who is also the Green Party’s animals spokesperson, said: “It is a privilege to join forces with so many passionate campaigners as we take this fight right to the government’s doorstep.

“Live exports is a barbaric industry that must be completely abolished. As a member of the European Parliament, I have written to the new UK minister for animals, Lord Gardiner, urging him to support the Europe-wide Stop The Trucks campaign.

“The campaign will mount a fresh call from national governments to amend European regulations to stamp out this inhumane practice.”

Mr Driver said: “It’s very important to have that level of support and I think people are beginning to see that the long-distance transportation of these animals in horrendous conditions is completely unacceptable.

“Soon, much like fox hunting was, I think this will be the big nationwide animal welfare campaign.”

Pensioners go berserk for new hearing aid

AT LAST. The hearing aid that thousands have wanted is now available.

Alta2 Pro is a totally invisible hearing aid when worn. It offers pensioners the opportunity to defy hearing loss by compensating for your individual hearing loss, in all situations, day and night. Nobody can see it because it fits snugly and comfortably in your ear canal and uses the ear’s natural acoustics for natural sound quality.

Everything works automatically. There are no controls to worry about so there’s no need to keep fiddling about and adjusting settings.

You can start enjoying life again as you concentrate on hearing, rather than thinking about your hearing aid.

Alta2 Pro continuously analyses incoming sounds and adapts to each individual situation so you always get the best hearing possible. Even in background noise.

When speech and conversation sounds are detected the sound is automatically increased at different frequencies so you hear and understand it clearly, not just loudly.

You get all the benefits you want in a digital hearing aid without the obvious sign that you are using one as it’s completely invisible in most ears.

UK Cycling hoping for chain reaction from Rio Olympics

A new nationwide initiative designed to build on the golden success of Team GB in the velodrome is being launched at Gravesend's Cyclopark this weekend...

By Adele Couchman
adele.couchman@archant.co.uk

FOLLOWING our Olympians' sensational fortnight in Rio, the national governing body of UK cycling is trialling a new project here in Kent to encourage budding riders into the sport.

With Team GB's cyclists taking home 12 medals and making a third consecutive win at the top of the Olympic medal tally, British Cycling is hoping to achieve even more home-grown success through a new social biking event – starting today (Sunday) in Gravesend.

Exclusively piloted in just two places around the UK, Cycle Circuits aim to provide a cycling alternative to global fitness craze Parkrun – a free, weekly 5k timed jog in areas of open space.

Hosted at Cyclopark, home to north Kent's giant 43 hectare open-air bike park, cyclists can expect a free tracking device to record their average time on the circuit – a motivator to improve times and distance.

Organisers say the rare opportunity is being trialled in Gravesend to make use of the area's world class cycling facilities.

Andrew Chaston, British Cycling's recreation manager for the south east, said:

"We're always trying to take talented cyclists onto the Olympic stage, and after such a successful fortnight in Rio we wanted to run a programme to inspire people to get out on a bike.

"Our traffic-free route at Cyclopark means anyone can get involved – but with the added tracking devices the circuit is also open to those looking to test their best time and distances.

"We're really excited this pilot is coming to Kent and if things go well Cycle Circuits will be taken countrywide next summer."

After opening in 2012, Cyclopark is the largest of its kind in Europe, offering a 2.9km-long road circuit, a 340-metre BMX track and 6km of mountain bike trails.

Naturally, bosses at the multi-million pound activity complex hope potential nationwide sporting projects like Cycle Circuits will put the park on the map.

"Being part of the Cycle Circuits pilot provides a great opportunity for more people to experience what Cyclopark has to offer, which we hope will lead to continued use of our first class facilities," said Cyclopark's CEO Alex Flint.

One of the stars of the Games, Jason Kenny, will also be banging the cycling drum as he heads to Brands Hatch early next month to take part in its Revolve24 event.

A series of cycling challenges – it is synonymous with the main, grueling 24-hour race but is complemented by a six-hour relay, and a new 12-hour 'Dusk 'til Dawn' challenge.

The circuit, near Swanley in Longfield, formed much of the Paralympic Games road cycling route in 2012, earning rave reviews at the time.

Kenny, who will be taking part in this year's event, said: "Brands Hatch is the best course for this event as you don't have any of the dangers of the road.

"It has a lot of interesting undulations, especially as you get out into the forest. It'll be a real challenge for people as they ride through the night, lighting their own way."

Kent Sports Trust also welcomed efforts to build on Team GB's success through initiatives encouraging people to try out different sports the county has to offer.

GOLDEN CHANCE: Rio stars Laura Trott and Jason Kenny (left) and (above) Gravesend's Cyclopark, the largest of its kind in Europe

CEO Steve Wolfe told KoS: "I can't congratulate the whole squad from Team GB enough for their achievements out in Rio. They will provide a sporting legacy for the whole country for many more years to come.

"It was especially pleasing to see so many Kent athletes out there competing and our Ambassadors doing so well.

"To have Dina Asher-Smith return home to Orpington with an Olympic bronze is fantastic. It will be great to take her into Kent schools to inspire that next generation.

"Kat Driscoll, who grew up in Medway, has shown how far you can go with determination and willpower. To finish sixth at the Olympics will encourage so many more girls and boys to take up trampolining for the first time.

"The success of the women's hockey side, with so many of the squad playing for Holcombe Hockey Club and Canterbury Hockey Club, will undoubtedly serve to inspire more people to play the game. We should see both clubs benefit from the ladies returning as Olympic gold medal winners.

"I'd have to say the cycling programme was one of my highlights of the Olympics, so I, as part of the Kent Sports Trust relay team, can't wait to race Jason Kenny in the Revolve24 event over at Brands Hatch on September 10 and 11.

"I'm not a natural cyclist by any stretch of the imagination, but to compete against the six-time Olympic gold medal winner will inspire me and our team as we raise funds for the KST Foundation and Help for Heroes."

The first three cycling trials at Cyclopark, just south of Gravesend alongside the A2, will take place today (Sunday), September 25 and October 22 from 2-4pm.

■ Those looking to attend must register by going to www.goskyride.com/Kent and searching Gravesend in the location bar. Riders wanting to take part must also ensure they bring their own bicycle.

Ray of Sunshine for Dreamland

It's not been the best of times for Margate's nostalgia-fuelled amusement park but this week it had some good news as it outlined plans for the £1.8m restoration of its cafe and cinema foyer entrance...

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

THE restoration of the former Sunshine Cafe and cinema entrance foyer at Dreamland is set to get underway after a local contractor was appointed to carry out the work this week.

Coombs won the race for the £1.8m contract after Thanet District Council ran an open tender process inviting interest in what it describes as the second phase of major redevelopment at the iconic Margate site.

The work, which is backed by a successful Coastal Communities Fund bid secured in 2014, is set to start on site with immediate effect.

It involves creating a lettable space on the site of the former cafe, which will include repairing the original building fabric, installing and replacing windows, re-roofing, restoring the building's 'fin' and brick fascia, installing a lift, new external signage and installing neon lighting.

Meanwhile, the foyer will be returned to its original 1930s design through the use of new brass hand railings, metal entrance doors, plastering to walls, venetian plaster work to the ceiling, bespoke lighting and signage, internal doors and windows.

This work will enable the former Sunshine Cafe to be brought back to life as a new restaurant for Margate, and the council is working towards identifying a potential operator for the restaurant.

It is hoped this will pave the way for further development of the entire Art Deco Cinema Complex, which forms a major part of the overall site and will come as part of a future phase of the wider Dreamland redevelopment.

It comes as a boost for Dreamland, which has endured a rough few months following the administration of operator Sands and Heritage Ltd, the resignation of CEO Eddie Kemsley and repairs needed for the park's centrepiece – the Scenic Railway.

However, a spokesperson for the amusement park confirmed that testing is now underway and bosses anticipate that the ride will be ready to take passengers soon, going into a bank holiday weekend when footfall is expected to be high.

Thanet North MP Sir Roger Gale told KoS earlier this month he was "concerned" by the breakdown but had faith in the park's ability to attract customers all year round.

John Healey, managing director of Coombs who will be carrying out the work, said: "Coombs are extremely proud to be awarded a further phase of restoration work on this important seafront landmark.

"We look forward to working with Thanet District Council's team and will again employ local labour wherever possible, many of whom have a personal interest and desire to see the Dreamland complex restored to its former glory.

"The completion of phase two works will significantly contribute to the continued regeneration of Margate."

Chris Wells, the Ukip leader of the district council, added: "We're delighted to be working with Coombs, a local contractor, on such an iconic project.

"The restoration of Dreamland has always been about working towards the redevelopment of the entire site, to make it flow and work as a whole entertainment complex.

"This is the second major phase for the site and is a significant step forward which will further increase visitor enthusiasm in Dreamland as a destination."

Win tickets to Thank You for the Music...

SATURDAY night and the lights are low... the Assembly Hall Tunbridge Wells is the place to go...

The world's longest-running ABBA concert show is coming to town to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Swedish super group's biggest selling hit – Dancing Queen.

The song was a million-selling, number-one hit in 13 countries and it forms the climax to the international hit stage show Thank You for the Music.

The production – which also features the UK's most successful Bee Gees revue – is now in its 23rd year and is coming to Tunbridge Wells on Saturday, September 10, at 7.30pm

Show producer Michael Taylor boasts that the spectacle has been delighting live music fans for longer than Bjorn, Benny, Agnetha and Frida did during the 70s and 80s.

"Dancing Queen represents the pinnacle of the group's career, and we have produced a brand-new show rocking the sound of "the right music" for 2016."

The set list, drawn from ABBA's nine number one hit singles, nine chart-topping albums and 19 top 20 singles in the UK, includes solid-gold hits like Super Trouper; Waterloo; Mamma Mia; Thank You for the Music; Gimme, Gimme, Gimme; Knowing Me Knowing You; Mamma Mia and, of course, Dancing Queen.

Thank You for the Music also features show stealers The Magic of the Bee Gees. The trio, backed by a live band, perform original Bee Gees' hits like Staying Alive, Massachusetts, Night Fever and How Deep is Your Love as well as million-sellers penned for other artists by the Bee Gees including Islands in the Stream, If I Can't Have You and Chain Reaction.

We have six pairs of tickets to what promises to be an amazing show. For your chance to win answer the simple question below:

■ Thank You for the Music celebrates the 40th anniversary of which hit single?

- a) Dancing Queen
 - b) Waterloo
 - c) Gimme, Gimme, Gimme

Welcome

FOR many years, Medway seemed to represent an area facing an uphill struggle simply to survive.

The closure of the Dockyard in 1984 saw thousands of jobs lost and signalled the end of the area's traditional industrial backbone.

But over the years, the transition from troubled area to rising star has taken place.

Today all the talk is not of unemployment and challenge, but of opportunity and ever increasing aspiration.

It has not ignored its past as it moves forward. In fact it has used it as the foundation upon which to build a brighter tomorrow. Quite literally in many cases as the former dockyard and port area is transformed from heavy industry into thriving modern facilities.

Education, leisure, retail and housing are expanding to appeal to the needs of today's society.

And the consequence is that Medway is increasingly comfortable in its own skin. Those that live there can see the changes.

An influx of new residents and businesses are injecting a vibrancy into the place.

There are still improvements needed, still hurdles to leap, but Medway is no longer stuck in a quagmire where it was being sucked down by a glorious past that it was constructed originally around. It looks back, but it does not stop pushing forward.

This guide is designed to celebrate and highlight the changing face of such an integral part of Kent.

To open the eyes of those who live and work here not to overlook its innate splendour. Or those who remain caught up in old habits of thinking they have to leave the district in order to shop, eat and enjoy themselves.

Medway today is both magnificent and growing.

The regeneration continues – watch this space to see just how exciting it will get.

Building a brighter regenerated future

REGENERATION

emily.king@archant.co.uk

SINCE the closure of the dockyard in 1984, Medway has been through a prolonged period of regeneration, rising from the ashes to usher in a new look and fresh vitality.

Anyone who lived in the area during this period of transition, will have seen the changes first hand and experienced the positive steps forward for quality of life, the economy, leisure, and health.

Its re-emergence has been influenced by its past with a nod to its proud heritage as it strides towards its future.

The regeneration rides on the rails of 11 key themes.

They include housing, learning and skills, tourism and heritage.

We are midway through a carefully orchestrated 20-year regeneration strategy, spear-headed and driven forward by Medway Council in co-operation with a number of development partners.

The majority of the revival is built upon the huge swathes of land which were once the dockyard and Medway port.

This has freed up quantities of prime real estate upon which the latest phase of development is being built.

Once the scene of heavy industry, the ground is now heavy under the weight of the glass-fronted finery of a new generation of homes and commercial developments.

Each phase has a key purpose and fits into the overall plan.

Chatham Waters was previously part of the Medway Ports site. Since 2013 it has seen significant investment with the building of an Asda supermarket and the new breed of secondary education – the university technology college.

Next to Chatham Waters is the success of the Dockside Outlet Centre which opened in 2012 and consists of shops, restaurants, gyms and a cinema, making leisure a big plus for Chatham locals.

Next on the success roll call is Rochester train station.

The station finished its £26m renovations in December 2015 and as a result commuters can now catch five extra trains to London in the mornings and one extra back in the evening, making transport to and from the area all the more easy.

Furthermore, when it comes to housing, there is the potential to create new homes for thousands of families.

Rochester Riverside will take some 12,000 homes over the next 12 years, and although currently on pause after some well publicised hiccups, there is still hope Lodge Hill will provide development for 5,000 homes; on the former MoD army barracks at Chattenden, near Rochester.

Creating a powerful cultural offering

emily.king@archant.co.uk

FROM hosting early performances from the likes of the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and David Bowie, the towns have long been a destination for the biggest performers.

As a consequence, the cultural offering in Medway has not only provided venues for art, drama and live music, but also spawned some of the nation's most influential creative talents.

From the likes of fashion designers Zandra Rhodes and Karen Millen to the artist Billy Childish, the unique nature of the towns has helped fire imaginations.

And the current and future generation will have plenty to inspire them too with a broad spectrum of opportunity to absorb or showcase their own burgeoning talents.

From the range of artistic endeavours that fall under the Nucleus Arts banner, an award winning arts organisation founded by the Halpern Charitable Foundation, designed to promote the arts in the area, it opens the door on a host of talent and creativity with branches in Chatham and Rochester.

For those who prefer the big stage, the Central Theatre, Chatham is a council-run theatre that showcases a wide range of entertainment from children's shows to big name music acts and comedians – not to mention staging a hugely popular annual pantomime.

The 400-seat capacity Brook Theatre, based in what was once Chatham Town Hall, is another venue under the auspices of Medway Council; regularly hosting jazz and folk evenings, the Medway Comedy Club, and studio showcase evenings.

More bijoux is the Medway Little Theatre. Formerly a disused warehouse, it now has two active youth groups covering ages seven to 18.

Cinemagoers have major multiplexes in both Chatham and Rochester, showcasing the latest big movies.

And few have failed to be excited by the annual Rochester Castle concerts which take place each year and attract some of the biggest acts.

The castle also holds open air cinema nights with September seeing the likes of classics The Goonies, Monty Python's Life of Brian and Baz Luhrmann's Romeo & Juliet set to play to packed audiences.

Alternatively if you'd like a whole day out with friends or family, Medway boasts a strong line-up of festivals.

Among them, celebrating Charles Dickens' numerous close links with the area, is the hugely popular Dickensian Christmas Festival.

And in the summer, thousands flock to the Dickens Festival too.

Earlier in the year, there's the Sweeps Festival, harking back to days gone by.

Those who prefer something a little more relaxed can head to the Medway Beer Festival which takes place at the Stanley Ballroom in Chatham this November 3-5.

So, if you like your culture varied then Medway is the place to be!

Independent Care

Independent care is a leading provider of home care services in Medway.

We are seeking Community Care Workers to provide care and support for elderly people living in their own homes.

Various shifts available which include full time, part time, weekend, evenings and four on four off rolling rota.

Experience is preferred but not essential as full training is provided.

Full UK driving licence and own mobile and vehicle is essential.

Successful candidates will enjoy good pay rates, petrol and travel allowances, NVQ and paid training courses along with 4 weeks annual holiday pro rata.

SHOPPING: Pentagon Shopping Centre offers an array of high street favourites

Variety of destinations for your retail therapy

SHOPPING

emily.king@archant.co.uk

FROM busy, cobbled high streets to big, spacious shopping centres, Medway has it all to offer and does not disappoint.

And while it is far too easy in this day and age to jump in the car and head to one of the big shopping complexes, it can be easy to overlook the plethora of stores, big and small, which line the streets offering everything the discerning shopping could need.

Rochester High Street is not only a shopaholic's dream but pleasing to the eye and steeped in history.

Amid the hustle and bustle of tourists and locals, the architecture is stunning and many are painted in bright, stand-out colours to create a very special atmosphere.

Streets are lined with independent, quirky shops; the new life blood for high streets as they face up to a new reality and our differing shopping habits.

Want to make a day of it? Rochester High Street has around 40 restaurants and places to eat. There's a bit of everything food-wise, Cumin Club for an Indian feast, Topes for some traditional British cuisine, Chiquito for a spicy Mexican, or perhaps Limehouse Thai for a thai green that'll blow your socks off.

And with pubs-a-plenty too, such as The Golden Lion, and The Eagle Tavern. A bite to eat and something to drink is surely the ideal accompaniment to a little retail therapy.

Alternatively, if you decide to take a stroll down Chatham High Street, there's the Pentagon Shopping Centre, home to more than 60 stores and food outlets.

Among them are independently owned cafés, such as Jesse's Café, and Café Sinatra, which have been praised by locals and visitors on travellers' online bible, TripAdvisor.

By Chatham Marina is the Dockside Outlet Centre. Inside are well-known, big-name shopping brands such as Cadbury, Marks and Spencers, Trespas, and Clarks, which are accompanied by cafés and restaurants like Burger King, Caffè Fratelli, and Boomers Bakery.

Moving away from Chatham and into Gillingham, you will find Hempstead Valley Shopping Centre. Boasting around 45 shops, it is currently extending the size of its New Look store to at least double the size.

The shopping centre also holds a monthly farmers' market which consists of stallholders selling local produce.

And the good news is that with the continual regeneration plans, the range and variety of retailers across the towns is only set to grow ever wider as developments are built and opened.

VARIETY: There's plenty of shopping choices and places to relax too

Fulfilling potential for future growth

EDUCATION

emily.king@archant.co.uk

HOME to not one but three different universities, and a college, Medway is paving the way for future generations' success.

The concept is very simple - deliver a top class education, injecting life, aspiration and vibrancy in to the towns and then generate the jobs with new developments to keep those talents here to life and work.

For Medway the focus on education has been very deliberate and extremely successful.

From high performing grammar schools to well rounded non-selectives, the variety is there for the discerning parent.

For fee-paying parents, there is even the opportunity to attend a school which is based in the former home of none other than Charles Dickens.

A relative newcomer to the education mix in the towns is the Medway University Technical College in Chatham.

A new breed of establishment, it offers a secondary education with a twist, offering the national curriculum but with a leaning towards engineering.

Such a move is more than a nod to the traditional industrial past of the area as it builds towards its prosperous tomorrow.

It sits within the education zone which has seen cutting edge facilities and historic buildings re-purposed for some of the region's key education establishments.

MidKent College in Gillingham, which opened in September 2009, has a £86 million campus which offers vocational training facilities, as well as its own fine dining restaurant, travel agency, hairdressers, and a learning resource centre.

It provides a fine stepping zone of vocational courses between school and university, apprenticeships or employment.

There are also an unprecedented three universities which have Medway campuses here too.

They include the University of Kent, University of Greenwich and Canterbury Christ Church University.

All provide a mix of leisure and sporting facilities to ensure students graduate in style and with the best facilities.

TOURISM

emily.king@archant.co.uk

It is hard to think of another area in the county as knee deep in fascinating, significant, history as Medway.

From the towering cathedral and magnificent castle to the place where one of literature's finest, Charles Dickens, lived and died, the history buff is truly spoilt for choice.

But it is the ability to trace the rise and fall of Britain's global clout which fascinates so many.

Today the Historic Dockyard Chatham is one of the county's most popular tourist attractions, combining history, education and politics in an unforgettable day out for the whole family.

But it is through the history of the dockyard that you can follow the creation of our great Navy and its steady decline over the years.

For those wanting a more modern twist, the site is also home to the backdrop of a whole host of blockbuster movies.

Everything from Sherlock Holmes to Les Misérables has been filmed there in recent years.

Sticking with the defence theme, there's Fort Amherst.

The fort was used as a civil defence centre in both world wars, and has more than 300 years of military history.

Visitors can take part in daily tours of the network of underground tunnels and investigate what is dubbed "one of Kent's most haunted locations".

Stepping away from history is Diggerland – a theme park which allows children and adults alike to ride, drive and operate real diggers, dumpers and other construction machinery.

The park also has indoor and outdoor play areas, sandpits, coin operated rides so that toddlers can enjoy themselves while the big kids amongst us play.

Even if you've lived here all your life, the chances are you'll find something new, interesting and educational right on your doorstep to explore.

HOME: Gillingham play their home games at Priestfield and attract supporters from all over the county, not just in Medway

Venues attract fans from across county

By Tom Pyman
tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

THE only Football League club in the county, Gillingham are well followed and well supported across Kent.

Currently plying their trade in the third tier of English professional football, League One, under the stewardship of Justin Edinburgh, the Gills got fans' hearts racing last season with a genuine push for promotion.

Top for the majority of the campaign, the boss admitted himself his players were overperforming and somewhat punching above their weight, so a collapse in the spring that saw them fall out of the top two and indeed the play-off places was perhaps to be expected if no less gutting.

This year, however, his players are a year older and wiser and will take the experience gained last year into mounting another promotion challenge.

They proved their mettle this week with a surprise 2-1 victory over Premier League outfit Watford after extra time in the EFL Cup, even despite star man Bradley Dack missing a penalty.

Dack scored what proved to be the winner late in the day after Mark Byrne had equalised from distance.

The win put the Gills in the hat for the third round with the country's top clubs, where they were handed a mouthwatering tie with Edinburgh's former club, Tottenham Hotspur, at White Hart Lane next month.

Chairman Paul Scally has made no secret of his desire to move to a bigger ground to facilitate the club's growing fanbase, but for now Priestfield is a recognisable, familiar and very capable home.

Away from football, the 1,000-seater rink, home to the Invicta Dynamos ice hockey team, also in Gillingham, proves a big hit with sports fans.

The Dynamos ended the 2015/16 season in an impressive second place in the NIHL South Division 1, behind Essex outfit Chelmsford Chieftains.

A 0-0 draw with the Wightlink Raiders in Gillingham on the final day of the campaign meant that the Mos bowed out of the Playoffs at the semi-final stage.

With 52 points from their 36 games, however, there is plenty to build on to come back stronger when the next season kicks off on Saturday, September 10.

Medway was also well represented at the recent Olympic Games in Brazil, where Team GB defied all expectations to return home with the second most gold medals in the entire competition, ahead of the likes of China and Russia and only behind the sporting powerhouse that is the US.

Chatham trampolinist Kat Driscoll impressed in her event and spoke of being overwhelmed when the team touched down at Heathrow to a heroes' welcome earlier this week.

"It's been incredible, they played the national anthem before we left," she said.

"It has been a really nice way to end it."

Speaking about how it was different to London 2012, she said: "All the extra emotions you normally get from a crowd you have to get from your team mates. That part I have really, really enjoyed."

Indeed the government's sports minister is also an MP for Chatham and Aylesford.

Tracey Crouch was in South America cheering on Driscoll and other athletes from across the county, and said following the conclusion of the Games: "The lifelong dedication and commitment of the athletes is backed up by the best support team of physios, nutritionists, analysts etc in the world and underpinned by the funding from the lottery and government making us all part of Team GB."

"However the Herculean efforts of those performing in Rio, including local athletes from Kent and Medway, has made us all so proud and I'm sure will go on to inspire future generations."

Steve Wolfe, CEO of Kent Sports Trust, added: "Kat Driscoll, who grew up in Medway, has shown how far you can go with determination and willpower. To finish sixth at the Olympics will encourage so many more girls and boys to take up trampolining for the first time."

Corbyn supporters set to rally as rival Smith makes a county visit

Labour suffered another blow in a county council by-election, but supporters of the under-fire party leader are launching a campaign in Thanet as Owen Smith outlined his own plans in trip to Medway

By Simon Allin & Tom Pyman

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A CAMPAIGN to “transform” the Isle of Thanet will launch this weekend when supporters of Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn descend on Ramsgate.

Mr Corbyn has proved a polarising figure since June’s EU Referendum, and is currently facing a leadership challenge, although bookies make him strong favourite to remain at the head of the party.

However, the Momentum Thanet group will show their support for the under-fire leader and reveal a plan to create better jobs, homes, health and education in the district at a rally on Saturday, September 3.

Organiser Christine Tongue said: “Just after Jeremy Corbyn was first elected, shadow chancellor John McDonnell came to Ramsgate and challenged us to produce an alternative plan for Thanet which he’s promised to support.

“This rally will kick off our attempt to meet his challenge.

“For too long Thanet has relied on businesses coming from outside to regenerate the idea.

“Now the time has come for local people, with the help of funding from government, to rebuild our community.”

“We want to change our community for the better – and we want to have fun doing it. Everyone is welcome.”

However, Ms Tongue believes the re-election of Mr Corbyn is essential to Momentum’s bid to transform the Isle.

“We need a revived, reunited Labour Party with Jeremy at the helm to give a chance for new ideas to flourish here,” she said.

“But we also desperately need an end to austerity policies and new ideas to end Thanet’s persistent high unemployment and low-wage economy.”

There will be a number of speakers at the rally including Ian Hodson, national president of the Bakers’ Union, and Jackie Walker, the vice chair of national Momentum, who lives in Broadstairs.

The rally will assemble at 11am by the Obelisk, Harbour Parade.

It comes after Mr Corbyn’s opponent in the Labour leadership race, Owen Smith, told supporters on a visit to Medway on Friday that “Kent needs a pay rise.”

He said: “Six years of Tory austerity have resulted in the sharpest fall ever recorded in living standards for low paid British workers.

“While the bonus culture booms again, 16,000 workers in Medway are earning less than the living wage.

“As the next Labour prime minister, I will implement radical plans to

SPEECH: Owen Smith visited Medway last week to drum up support for his campaign, but current leader Jeremy Corbyn remains well-backed in Kent deliver the biggest increase in living standards in a generation.

“I will deliver a real living wage for everyone over the age of eighteen; increased support for low-paid workers through our social security system; and a revolution in workers’ rights to give people a strong voice at work.”

Mr Smith also outlined his plans for the NHS and for a ‘British New Deal’ and was accompanied by Rachel Garrick, a local Labour Party member who formerly founded and chaired the Medway branch of the pro-Corbyn momentum group, but has since become disillusioned with the leader.

She said: “Over the last ten months, I became increasingly frustrated with the leadership of the Labour Party.

“I hear the policies put out by John McDonnell and Jeremy Corbyn and I wholeheartedly support them.

“But in practice I see a leader confined by an inability to compromise and to reach out to make alliances — the basis of pragmatic politics.

“Owen is a committed, soft left politician who understands that the Labour movement has cried out for change.

“He is offering policies that sit firmly on the left but he understands how best to get those policies across to the general public.

“He can unite the entirety of our movement and make a real difference to people’s lives.”

Labour suffered a local blow last week after losing a crucial seat in a Kent County Council by-election.

Tory candidate Diane Marsh was victorious in Gravesham East with 1,758 votes to Lyn Milner’s 1,538 for Labour – representing a 36 per cent share of the vote on a 16.38 per cent turnout, the result coming just weeks after the party lost a seat on Ashford council to Ukip.

The council’s Labour leader, Gordon Cowan, told KoS: “Obviously we are disappointed that we lost the seat. We would have hoped to have held onto it.”

Cllr Cowan did not blame the furore around Mr Corbyn for the loss, however, believing it was more to do with a low voter turnout during the holiday period.

North & West

“Labour has its problems, but I do not think the result was based on that,” he said.

“Lots of people, including many working-class families, are on holiday.

“In general, we would have had a much higher turnout and we would have got the result we deserved.

“I am confident that in eight months time we will have that seat back.”

Conservative leader on the council, Paul Carter, told KoS: “I am absolutely delighted. The whole team worked exceedingly hard and got the result they earned.

“It was regarded as a very safe Labour seat and the result reflects on Theresa May making a good start in government.”

Cllr Carter added that Labour’s national leadership did not help their situation, and that, in contrast to Labour’s infighting, the Conservatives had shown it was possible to have a quick and efficient change at the top of the party.

“I am really optimistic for the future of local government,” he added.

“The previous administration did not have a lot of trust in local government, but the new team will reflect on the strengths of local government.”

Senior Labour figures in the county have been quick to air their scepticism about Mr Corbyn.

Discussing the potential for a new centre-left party emerging, perhaps with the Liberal Democrats, Medway councillor and the party’s candidate in May’s police and crime commissioner election, Tristan Osborne said the divisive leader was holding Labour back.

He told KoS earlier this month that a victory for Mr Corbyn would see the party “haemorrhage support” and that someone of Mr Smith’s stature was needed to win back votes, particularly in Kent where the party has now fallen behind Ukip as well as the Conservatives.

“We need a leader that resonates nationally because if you don’t have that you’re not going to win and if we don’t win marginal seats in this county it doesn’t bode well,” he said.

TRIBUTE: The youngest Osmond brother says Andy Williams was like family to them

Jimmy Osmond details his Moon River and Me tour

The performer has returned to the UK with a tour in honour of Andy Williams

AFTER creating an avid UK fanbase during his time on MasterChef, Jimmy Osmond is returning to the UK in September with his new tour, Moon River and Me.

The show started off as what Mr Osmond describes as "Andy's pet project". Andy Williams built and produced the show for TV before passing away in 2012 of bladder cancer.

When speaking to Mr Osmond about the theatre show and why he decided to take it on and travel it around the world he said: "Andy asked me to buy his theatre before he died because he wanted me to keep his musical presence going."

"I grew up with Andy, he was like family to us. My first TV appearance was aged three on his show."

"The show was only meant to be in his theatre, but Andy was so loved by everyone that we were inundated with offers to take it all over the world."

Moon River and Me has, according to Mr Osmond, received great praise so far. "There's been an amazing reaction, especially from people of a certain age."

Perhaps this is why the tour has expanded its dates and locations across the UK. Mr Osmond added: "Originally there was only meant to be five shows in the UK and then the next thing I know, there's 27."

"I guess this proves that sometimes you're more sought after when gone."

When asked how he'd describe the show in one word, Mr Osmond responds with "intimate", but then expands with details of the show.

"In the beginning, I was just producing the show," muses Mr Osmond. "I brought in Charlie Green from Britain's Got Talent to sing Andy's songs because he has that soulful voice but then I felt like we needed someone who had a connection with Andy."

"It made sense that I host it."

However, the star is quick to make it clear that the show is "not about me, it's about Andy's music."

Telling more details of what the show entails, Mr Osmond said: "There's always something happening as songs last three minutes, and then there's special guests."

"In the middle of the show we come down into the audience and it becomes interactive and fun."

"There's lots of comedy as well," he adds.

The singer promises to sing Mr Williams' most famous songs such as Music To Watch Girls By, Happy Heart, Can't Take My Eyes Off Of

You, Almost There, and May Each Day, and comments that 'Andy sings alongside me in the show. There's video recordings of him singing which play while I perform.'

Having already started his tour in the US, and with one more stop in Las Vegas before flying to the UK, Mr Osmond says he's preparing for his time here by "sleeping a lot" but then laughs saying: "I'm used to the travelling, I grew up on the road, in a new city everyday."

The Moon River and Me tour will be playing in three Kent venues, Central Hall, Chatham on October 1, Orchard Theatre, Dartford, on October 11, and Churchill Theatre, Bromley, on October 17.

Prices range from £18 to £33.50 (concessions get £2 off) and can be purchased from the venue's box offices.

Much loved production of Dirty Dancing is back

By Emily King

emily.king@archant.co.uk

HITTING the road and heading to Kent with a brand new cast is the greatly anticipated show tour of Dirty Dancing.

The show has already sold around 150,000 tickets with some nights being sold out, meaning they've added extra dates to the tour.

The classic story is brought to the stage still featuring hit songs such as Hungry Eyes, Hey! Baby, Do You Love Me, and The Time Of My Life.

This tour follows two blockbuster West End runs, two UK tours, and international productions.

Johnny Castle will be played by Lewis Griffiths. Mr Griffiths has previously starred as Nick Massi on the UK tour of Jersey Boys, as well as featuring in Ghost, Legally Blonde, and Priscilla Queen of the Desert.

Katie Hartland will take on the role of Baby Houseman, and the tour will be her professional theatre debut since graduating from Royal Central School in 2015.

Penny Johnson will be played by Charlie Milner, who is a regular on the Dirty Dancing scene having started as a member of the ensemble before taking over the role of Penny in 2015.

This production of Dirty Dancing has been worldwide since it began in Australia in 2004, and the first UK tour in 2011 made £42m from theatres across the country.

The show has been produced by Karl Sydo, Joye Entertainment, and Paul Elliot, and was written by Eleanor Bergstein the script-writer of the 1987 film.

The tour was originally only coming to the Orchard Theatre in Dartford from September 1 to 10 but will also now arrive at the Churchill Theatre in Bromley from March 6 to 11, 2017.

To book tickets for Dartford visit orchardtheatre.co.uk or call 01322 220000. For Bromley, visit churchilltheatre.co.uk or call 02032 856000.

Frankenstein director reveals behind-the-scenes secrets

By Emily King

emily.king@archant.co.uk

MARY Shelley's gothic horror, Frankenstein, is a timeless classic, which is now coming to the stage.

The artistic team behind Black-eyed Theatre's 2013 production of Dracula, have come together once more to reimagine Frankenstein. The team have infused together storytelling, live music, and theatricality to bring a fresh take on what is considered to be a masterpiece of fiction literature.

Eliot Giuralarocca is the director behind the new theatre production, and when asked what enticed him to take on Frankenstein he said: "I didn't need much enticing to be fair. Andrian McDougall the artistic director of Blackeyed Theatre approached me with the idea and I jumped at the chance to do it.

"It's a cracking, gripping, classic story that has stood the test of time and when you are presented with an opportunity to have a go at something you like that you simply have to grasp it with both hands."

Adapting a story of this status

THRILLING: The show is a reimaged version of Mary Shelley's gothic classic must come with some challenges and Mr Giuralarocca says, "we have a cast of five performers to tell the story and I think it's definitely going to be a busy show for them, a real ensemble piece with a bold 'actor led' performance style.

"I envisage the company on stage all the time bringing the story to life and moving fluidly from one location to the next, puppeteering, changing roles, manipulating objects, moving furniture, creating environments, playing instruments and underscoring action with percussion, voice and sound as necessary."

Mr Giuralarocca believes that the audience can expect a show that "celebrates the excitement of live theatre using inventive, bold storytelling to bring Mary Shelley's dark gothic thriller to life.

"If audiences leave the theatre excited and entertained by that they've seen as well as being moved and challenged by the complex moral questions that this tale provokes, I'd be delighted."

Blackeyed Theatre will be bringing Frankenstein to Margate's Theatre Royal on November 12.

Standard tickets cost £15 and can be purchased from the box office by visiting theatreroymarmgate.com

GCSE RESULTS

Success is 'cool' at Kent College

EVEN on the hottest day of the year it is still cool to be successful at Kent College. Kent College is celebrating another year of excellent GCSE results following this summer's examinations.

The overall pass rate was 100% and almost all students achieved five grades at A*-C. Sixty nine per cent of all grades achieved were A*-B grades.

These statistics follow on from the excellent results at A level and IB already announced.

Students who did particularly well include the following top performers: Harriet Adley, William Bickerstaff, Jamie Dawe, Phoebe Douglas, Sophie Dicksbury, Olivia Earl, Holly Fielder, Rostislav Kravchenko, Marco Lam, William Leatherby, Charlotte Letley, Christopher Leung, Emma Newson, Bethan Okroj-Williams, John Ong and Tara Woodley.

Headmaster Dr David Lamper said: "The pupils have achieved an excellent set of results and so have secured sound foundations for the next stage in their educational career. On top of wonderful A level and IB results, our students can be very proud of their achievements. Congratulations to them and to all of my colleagues for the hard work which makes excellent results like these possible."

EXCELLENCE: Pupils at Canterbury's Kent College celebrate their GCSE exam results, which were described as 'excellent' by head Dr David Lamper

We must move county forward

ANGELA Steven's letter says: "give me Manston Airport every time".

Well, she's got Manston Airport, and all it does is consume column inches and public money.

Still, it could be worse, if it gets listed status, like Margate's Dreamland, it will become mired in a nostalgia-fogged past and then nothing will happen. These areas of Kent need to move forward, they need regeneration and wealth creation, the current stasis fails local people.

John Ward Moorhouse,
 Tunbridge Wells

Brexit... what's not to like?

SADLY, Ray Duff will plumb any depths to make himself right, a good old 'flat earther'! [KoS 21/08] He thinks this country just isn't good enough!

Firstly, Churchill actually said, "We have our own dream and our own task. We are with Europe, but not of it, we are linked, but not combined. We are interested and associated, but not absorbed. If Britain must choose between Europe and the open sea, she must always choose the open sea." House of Commons May 11th 1953.

Secondly, what 'austerity'? Does he mean the MPs' 11 per cent rise, the £52 billion for HS2; over 800 Lords on £300/day + expenses; quangocrats on £1/4 million for a 3 day week, while they refuse to stop the £30-40 billion in tax avoidance, don't stop the hundreds of billions in waste in the NHS, MoD, quangos and other NGOs, etc., etc., while punishing the sick and disabled and our national debt rises to £1.6 trillion? [that's 11 '0's]

Remaining tied to Europe we'd be heading exactly where Greece has ended up, where Spain, Portugal, France and the rest are going, with high youth unemployment, stagnation and crippling debt. Over 2 million coming here to work from the EU, speaks volumes!

After a hiccup caused by Carney, Osborne and Cameron talking down our country, like Ray Duff, Brexit has proved to be the wise course! The world offering 10 times our trade with the EU, small businesses borrowing an unprecedented £20 billion this month, with the 'dead hand' of EU regulation going, economy growing at 0.6 per cent, large companies investing more in GB, etc., etc.! What's not to like? Pity the EU is unable to do the same!

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Adults should be free to marry for... love

I WAS delighted to read of former Bennett Memorial schoolboy and Olympian race-walker Tom Bosworth's engagement to his long-term boyfriend Harry Dineley in Rio last week.

As an openly-gay Christian and a former Constituency Young Conservative Chairman, I was initially opposed to David Cameron legislating to permit same-sex marriage – believing that marriage should be a lifelong institution for a man and a woman in which to procreate children – and that Cameron's motives had more to do with winning back the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgendered vote after a majority of Conservative MPs previously voted against reducing the age of consent for homosexual acts and for a ban on local authorities promoting homosexuality as a normal way of life in schools.

However, I have since come to believe it to be both hypocritical and homophobic for fellow Christians to deny gay and lesbian couples the option of marrying one another when, at the same time, sanctioning the marriage of hitherto cohabiting heterosexual couples and heterosexual divorcees, which would appear to suggest that there should be one law for heterosexuals and another for homosexuals. This cannot be right. Consenting adults should be free to marry the person they love, irrespective of their sexual orientation and/or gender identity.

I pray that Tom and Harry will be blessed with good health, much happiness and growing prosperity together for many years to come, and counsel my fellow Christians who oppose same-sex marriage to reconsider their position (as I have), lest they deter LGBT people from attending church and, worse still, portray the Reformed Faith to be homophobic and transphobic which it is not.

Entering school by 'same gate'

AN alternative to Colin Bullen's letter calling for more grammar schools might be to quote a favourite saying among educationists that "children should enter school through the same gate".

Although Kent has always favoured grammars, selection was out of fashion after the war years because it was felt to be both discriminatory and made no provision for late developers.

Other countries in developed Europe cope perfectly well with a generally one-tier system. In Germany children go onto the same campus at secondary level but they split for lessons into three separate residences: specialist scholastic (likely to go on to a good university), general intelligence, and technical/vocational. But they mix out of class for other activities.

What this does is to give children early on in life the idea that everyone brings something to the table, and this helps erode class and income inequality. Unlike in Britain where our fractured education system (thank you Michael Gove) continues to reinforce a class system that is a stain on our national reputation.

As far as comprehensives go, there are some very good ones. My three daughters went to a local one and one of them went on to a university degree. I suggest that much of today's problem in the state system revolves around the particular difficulties of inner city schools faced with a multitude of ethnicities and languages, and more generally by the weight of Ofsted-ing, paperwork, assessments and bureaucracy in general which make it difficult for today's teachers to string together half an hour's teaching.

David Redshaw,
 Gravesend

Running out of enthusiasm...

RAY Duff gets himself into a right two-and eight; manages to cover a host subjects, all very badly.

I am sure that any election that was re-run immediately after the first result was known would result in a different outcome. As for "legally binding", he's right the EU referendum is not, but I don't rate any politician's chances, nor any government's, that chooses to ignore the outcome.

The PM has stated "Brexit means Brexit", but the detail has to be worked through – not least on this side of the channel: the Remainers were so arrogant in their assumptions of the outcome that no planning was put in place so the planners had to start from scratch – giving Westminster and Whitehall a much-deserved bloody-nose.

Then Mr Duff sets off on a long-winded and diverse range of pet subjects: Grammar schools are not divisive, I benefited, I came from, and still am, working class. They bring out the best by catering for elitism; just like the Olympics, not everyone can do well so we need to cultivate talent and success.

Fracking, how else does he think the country is going to source its energy needs? Private corporations will undertake the task and they should be rewarded for their enterprise, I know of no other system that works properly – nationalisation is a demonstrably flawed model for anything.

I've run out of enthusiasm for this: Mr Duff is the man in the pub who, as soon as you nail him on one argument, immediately sets-to on another.

Skyactiv helps to lift Mazda

BRAND UPDATE: Japanese sporting marque shows small is beautiful by developing a highly desirable line-up with driving appeal, style and quality...

MAZDA aims to attract buyers' interest in the new '66 registration plate with the £14,995 Mazda2 Red Edition.

Based on the upmarket 90PS (89bhp) SE-L Nav version, this limited edition comes in either white or black, with red rear spoiler and rear underskirt, plus red highlights inside.

This delivers the supermini hot hatch look to complement the Mazda2's excellent driving and handling, the hallmark of the Japanese brand's entire range and all thanks to Mazda's brilliant Skyactiv technology suite: tuning driver enjoyment, boosting power to weight ratio, and slashing consumption and emissions.

Rather than commit expensive R&D into alternative powertrains such as hybrid and electric – which can always be bought in under licence later – Mazda has simply concentrated on maxing the potential of existing technologies.

It's certainly working in the UK where brand sales soared more than 20 per cent last year and are currently 25 per cent higher this year.

Mazda UK also signalled its confidence in the future by recently moving its Dartford HQ from a shared site to a standalone facility down the road that includes a showroom for the revitalised range, a new heritage collection, and state-of-the-art offices.

SKYACTIV
FLAG WAYER:
the MX-5

After delivering some superb new high volume models – the mainstream trio of Mazda2, Mazda3 family hatch, and Mazda6 family saloon and estate, plus the excellent Mazda CX-3 and CX-5 sporting SUVs – the icing on the cake was added last year.

This was the marvellous Mk 4 MX-5 sports car (from £18,495) a flag waver for the Skyactiv revolution because it allowed Mazda to recreate the lightness and scale of the legendary Mk 1 MX-5, retaining the front engine/rear-driven balance, while incorporating the best tech and safety now demanded by consumers and legislation.

Significantly though, Mazda no longer needs to rely on the MX-5 to deliver headlines.

Viva the Corsa evolution at Vauxhall

Vauxhall's five-door supermini is a smart, honest and valid re-working of its big-selling predecessor, plus a superb engine line-up writes Steve Loader...

CARMAKERS normally invite derision by passing off a facelift as an all-new model.

In the case of the latest Corsa (from £9,745) five-door supermini though, Vauxhall can be excused: firstly, the brand has never hid the fact that the fifth generation car is an 'evolution' of its predecessor even though most body panels are new.

Secondly, there was a strong case for 'not fixing it, if it ain't broke' as, even in its twilight years, the previous car still sold strongly thanks to funky styling, good interior space, and decent driving dynamics.

Indeed, the racy three-door Corsa variant continues in the old shape for now, while the new five-door carried over the above plus points when launched in 2014, while adding some acclaimed styling cues from the bigger Astra hatchback and Insignia family model.

The chassis was also tuned to UK roads – officially some of the worst in Europe – because this country happens to be the Corsa's biggest market.

Where the car did need help was in the engine compartment, and that's clearly where the big money has been spent. The undoubted star here is a three-cylinder 1.0-litre turbo-charged petrol engine and six-speed gearbox in 90PS (89bhp) or 115PS (114bhp) tune with fuel and emissions saving Start/Stop technology.

'Three-pot' units are a Holy Grail for manufacturers, being cheap to build, lighter and more compact, and delivering many operating efficiencies.

Unfortunately, they can also be noisy so-and-sos, because of the inherent imbalance of an odd number of cylinders – I previously described one such engine as sounding like angry pheasants caged under the bonnet.

No such 'fowl-up' with the Corsa though; the engineers have done a wonderful job of smoothing the eccentricities of three pistons driving the crankshaft, to create an engine that is surprisingly refined, lively and economical.

Added to that is a fun element that makes this unit attractive to cash-strapped younger buyers, whether installed in the Corsa itself, or its posh handbag/manbag class MINI-rivalling Adam sister model.

This entertainment comes in the form of light but responsive steering, and a crisp gearchange well able to make use of a thick band of power from low down the rev range; this is a little car you can press on with if necessary, well-suited to urban cut and thrust traffic too, while also cruising nicely on the motorway.

Other engine options include a 1.4-litre four-cylinder with or without turbocharging, 1.6-litre turbo for the three-door VXR 'pocket rocket' and 1.3-litre diesel, though the last does make the Corsa feel relatively cumbersome.

The Corsa's roomy cabin shows a much needed upweight from the previous car, with many soft-touch materials, underlining Vauxhall's bid to move above the mainstream market.

JUST ADD FUEL:
Peugeot PCP deal makes the 208 a popular choice

SECTOR PIONEER: Nissan's Qashqai launched the crossover craze

FLAGSHIP SUV APPEAL: Grand Cherokee is the top Jeep

New Reg clicks with 'Plate '66'

By Steve Loader

BINGO callers like to call 66 as "clickety click", and something will definitely click when the car registration plate changes to '66 on September 1.

Because 'Plate 66' arrives to find the UK new car market in surprisingly good health despite dire predictions about the EU referendum depressing consumer confidence, before and after the momentous Brexit vote.

There is also an ever growing variety of car types to buy, driven by changing tastes: people carriers or MPVs, for instance, are in decline yet off-roader styled SUVs and versatile crossovers are booming.

And British drivers' taste for small cars is rock solid – no doubt helped by PCP (personal contract purchase) schemes in which buyers know exactly how much they need to find each month to drive the latest model.

Indeed, Peugeot's Just Add Fuel spells it out: everything is included in the deal – tax (where applicable) insurance, servicing and the car itself – so you just add fuel every month.

There is also a wider choice of powertrains: electric and hybrid is increasingly popular, while petrol – helped by light compact low emission units – is making a comeback, particularly in smaller models where heavier diesel engines can be hard on tyres and mechanicals.

The UK car market actually grew by a steady 3.2 per cent in the first six months of the year, according to figures released by motor industry mouthpiece, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT) and the 1,420,636 new registrations was the best half-year performance ever recorded.

However, demand in June eased slightly, with a -0.8 per cent fall in registrations, meeting expectations that market growth would stabilise following a record 2015.

SMMT chief executive Mike Hawes said: "It is far too soon to determine whether the referendum result has had an impact on the new car market. The first six months saw strong demand at record levels but the market undoubtedly cooled over the second quarter."

Join the space race with a supermini...

DOWNSIZING your car is trendy – is it just common sense?

Soaring fuel and insurance costs, greater environmental awareness, and punitive road tax on larger cars, have all played their part in turning us away from the typical family car, and turning us on to family hatchbacks first, and now superminis.

And we find them not so 'mini' after all as manufacturers become ever more imaginative in cabin design. So superminis, and even smaller city cars, now account for around 40 per cent of new car sales, followed by family hatchbacks with around 25 per cent of registrations.

Even the commonality of the two-box supermini shape – dictated by the need for compact on-road dimensions – can be addressed by ever more imaginative customisation.

This might be a roof of a different colour, pattern or decal such as a flag, or it could be special wheels, bespoke door mirrors, or a wild paint job.

In short, superminis might have similar proportions, but they don't have to look alike.

They can also be fun: the short overhangs/wheel-at-each corner look lends itself to a well sorted chassis and handling so that, just like the original 1960s Mini, these small hatchbacks can handle windy roads.

With small yet powerful engines they often have the revs to match too, though sensible use of the throttle also brings good economy.

Cars for all reasons and seasons

THERE'S no doubt that the motoring flavour of the month is the off-roader look.

Not that it has to be partnered with size and four-wheel drive anymore, because the style has been civilized in recent years by the SUV (sports utility vehicle) and the crossover.

As the name implies, the latter is a crowd pleaser that is part family hatchback, part people carrier/MPV, and usually with a high-riding SUV stance.

SUVs have revived too as buyers look for a little more off-road and 4x4 performance.

But whether crossover or SUV, these cars are the Swiss Army Knives of the car market, able to cope with the needs of most owners who require more space than the ubiquitous supermini and city car can offer.

Of course, like most cars these days, they can also be personalized and customized, while the option of 4x4 on most models means that they can do some simple off-roading or deliver decent traction in awkward situations, without the real over-loads of a full 4x4 off-roader.

A few, such as Peugeot's clever 2008, also offer a heavy duty traction control system on their front driving wheels, delivering the 4x4 experience at a bargain price.

Meanwhile, the cabins have been given the full MPV treatment, often with clever rear seats that fold and slide and in various combinations – you can even have seven seats on some models.

And the high stance – so good for visibility and easy access – doesn't have to come at the price of roly-poly cornering; most designs now handle as well as lower slung models.

VERSATILITY: the SUV/Crossover is the Swiss Army Knife of the motor market. Cars like the new MG GS, Jeep's Renegade entry model, and Kia's best seller, the Sportage

Book a test drive

On the other hand...

As you will have read earlier, SUVs, crossovers and superminis dominate car buyers' thoughts nowadays.

But not everyone can cram into a small car or wants a high-riding 'fun bus', so the family hatchback remains a popular option – such as two newcomers to the sector, the Fiat Tipo and latest Renault Megane, both available as a hatch or sporty estate.

These cars tend to be cheap to run and the lift up tailgate or 'hatch' makes them clever load carriers – two levers is often all it takes to convert them to a small van – and they usually handle well too.

Of course, the saloon remains popular with those who want to project a classier image – particularly with the premium brands.

But the biggest market news apart from the rise of the crossover, has been the resurgence of the estate car: once regarded as a tradesman or sales rep's favourite, the estate is seen increasingly as a lifestyle choice, suggesting that you have a country retreat and enjoy an active timetable.

Indeed, so popular have they become that many estate models outsell their saloon or hatchback counterparts.

If you are shopping for an estate though and really do need the room, check the vital statistics of boot space and overall load area, they can vary widely and some family hatchback based estates do outgun estate models from the class above.

GREAT ALTERNATIVES: Alfa Romeo's lovely new Giulia is a premium saloon option, but cars with hatchback and estate options are big business, such as the established Skoda Octavia and a new duo, the FIAT Tipo and Renault Megane

'Eco' has a double meaning

BUYERS may have eco-logy in mind when buying their next car, but it's probably a long way behind eco-nomy.

They will be looking for the real savings on fuel and tax behind any 'eco' car's sales pitch – at least until the Government's new road tax scheme applies in 2017.

For now tax bandings range from zero for cars with the lowest CO2 emissions (band A - below 100g/km) right up to £505.

Even more crucially, you don't pay anything for low CO2 emitting cars in bands B-D for the first year, but the tax soars higher up the scale.

Anyone spending £50,000-100,000 on a car probably won't fret, but most people want to save fuel and tax, while also doing their bit for the environment.

Longer term, electric cars may be the answer, but the latest trend is towards plug-in hybrids.

Better than a standard hybrid, these allow you to charge the batteries overnight or at the office during the day, so upfront travel costs are kept low.

There are also conventional 'eco' cars, but these are not always cheap, so shop around and note that if you don't cover enough miles to make fuel savings offset the car's purchase price, conventional alternatives may be a better bet.

Don't ignore petrol models either; concerns about harmful NOX (oxides of nitrogen) emissions from diesels, plus the higher price of the engines upfront should be compared with lively new turbo-charged small capacity petrol engines with low emissions and consumption.

It's clear the market is heeding concerns about NOX and the increasing efficiency of petrol: last year's record registration figures showed petrol enjoying greater growth (8.4 per cent versus 3 per cent) while equal market shares indicated that diesel's superiority was waning for the first time in decades.

GREENING IT: the economic advantages of small cars such as the Kia Rio are obvious, and hybrids like the classy Lexus NX300h offer big tax savings for company car drivers, but electric cars like the Renault Zoe could be the future

Put your bum on the seat first

CAR buyers' attitudes to booking a test drive range from obsession to indifference, but it is worthwhile before signing paperwork.

So:

Book early - New Reg is a busy time for dealers, so map out a test schedule, driving each candidate soon after another for more accurate comparisons. It helps that many dealers are grouped at 'motor city' sites like Broad Oak at Canterbury, Ashford's Orbital Park and Dowding Way, Tunbridge Wells, allowing easy shuttling from one dealer to the next.

Don't be hurried - insist on time to test the car in town traffic, on the motorway or a high speed road and on less well-maintained rural roads.

What are you looking for? Experience of different road surfaces, highlighting seating and ride comfort issues, plus engine, wind, tyre and mechanical noise. And especially...

PUT THEM TO THE TEST: the premium Lexus IS, capacious little Skoda Fabia Estate, classy Peugeot 308 SW (estate)

Do you like the controls? It used to be easy to find your way around dashboards, but most carmakers are now going their own way in search of the best human interaction, but they actually don't suit everyone. Touchscreens for sounds and sat nav and electronic handbrakes are just two possible bugbears.

Is it the right spec? Try to get a test car as close to the one you are interested in, even if you have to wait a few days extra or go to another dealership.

Make it a family outing - it can be a painful process of 'are we there yet?' proportions, but try to involve as many of the would-be car users

- drivers and non-drivers. This can answer questions about comfort and visibility in the rear and, specifically, is there really room for three across the back seat, especially if one place has to take a strap-in child seat or booster? Also, can you lift shopping in and out of the boot easily or indeed, is there much of a boot?

Don't feel pressured - whether you have one or several candidates to check out. Always go away and weigh your thoughts; maybe leave the salesman with a reason to be cheerful by asking whether it would be OK to come back later for another test drive. If the reaction is not good then you've learned something there too!

Boss delighted by cup trip to Spurs

Justin Edinburgh returns to White Hart Lane with the Gills

Football

By Tom Pyman

tom.pyman@archant.co.uk

GILLINGHAM have received a glamour draw in the third round of the EFL Cup after being paired with Premier League giants Tottenham Hotspur.

Boss Justin Edinburgh won the then League Cup with Spurs in his playing days, and will be relishing a return to White Hart Lane next month for only the second meeting between the two clubs.

The north London outfit won the only fixture to date, also in the League Cup, 4-2 at Priestfield in November 1982.

It comes after Edinburgh's side sprung a surprise in the last round, beating Watford 2-1 at Vicarage Road after extra time, courtesy of goals from Mark Byrne and Bradley Dack after Odion Ighalo had put the top flight side ahead just before the hour mark.

The Gills last reached this stage of the competition in 2005, and victory against Spurs will see them progress to the fourth round for the first time since 1996, when they lost at Ipswich Town having beaten then-Premier League side Coventry City in a replay at Highfield Road.

Edinburgh said: "I'm delighted for the club and the players; it's a great reward for a fantastic performance at Watford.

"I'm sure this game will be even better for everybody involved with the club, from the chairman to the staff, the players and the fans, because of the size, stature and history of Tottenham.

PROUD: Gillingham boss Justin Edinburgh

"There was a bit of celebrating in the Edinburgh house when the draw was made, that's for sure.

"On a personal note, taking a club to White Hart Lane is something that I've wanted to do since I went into management.

"A lot of hard work has gone in to getting there, and when the evening arrives [an unspecified date on the week commencing September 19], I'm sure it'll be a fantastic occasion.

"As a young manager, I've worked my way through the leagues, and you want to cause upsets when you get the opportunity."

Student aims to inspire from sidelines in Rio

Basketball

A STUDENT from Maidstone says he will be looking to use skills learnt at university to inspire Team GB to glory at the Paralympic Games in Rio.

John Francis, 25, is studying sports science at the University of Worcester and will be in Brazil to assist the British wheelchair basketball team, using his expertise in performance analysis.

Francis began his PhD Studentship in the Institute of Sport and Exercise Science in April 2014 after completing a Master's degree in Sports Coaching at the same university.

His research involves close work with the British wheelchair basketball squads, which train at the

University of Worcester Arena, and focuses on performance analysis.

The former Maidstone Grammar

School pupil, who moved to Worcester in 2009, said: "It is a great honour and privilege to be given the chance to transfer the skills I have learnt as a student as well as the research findings from my PhD into practice on the world's largest sporting stage.

"I hope my involvement with both the men's and women's British wheelchair basketball performance squads during the Rio Paralympic cycle has had a beneficial and contributing impact towards their continual medal achievements at the European Championships.

"It is now time to transfer these skills to the world stage, unlocking opponents' patterns and styles of play in order to find the marginal gains that will help the teams achieve their true playing potential."

Promising batsman to extend stay at county

SEAN Dickson has pledged his long-term future to Kent by signing a contract extension at the club.

The batsman, 24, achieved his career best score this season – 207 not out in the County Championship win at Derbyshire – and he averages 49.75 this season in red-ball cricket.

The right-hander earned his first professional contract after impressing in the second XI last summer.

He said: "I've really enjoyed my time at Kent so far and I had no hesitation in extending my contract here.

"The club gave me a great opportunity and I'd like to think there's more to come from me.

"There's a good bunch of guys in the dressing room and I'm confident we can win trophies together."

Head coach Jimmy Adams added: "Sean has settled into the squad nicely and if he continues to progress, I am sure it won't be long before he becomes an established player for Kent."

Olympic stars touch down to great fanfare

KENT'S triumphant Olympians touched down on British soil to great fanfare this week following the most successful Games in more than a century.

Orpington sprinter Dina Asher-Smith, part of the women's 4x100m relay bronze medal-winning quartet, said she hoped her success would inspire young people, while Chatham trampolinist Kat Driscoll told reporters: "It's been incredible, they played the national anthem before we left – a really nice way to end it."

Sports minister and Chatham and Aylesford MP Tracey Crouch added: "The Herculean efforts of those performing in Rio, including local athletes from Kent and Medway, has made us all so proud and I'm sure will go on to inspire future generations."

World Cup hero to open facility

ONE of the shining lights of England's historic World Cup winning team in 1966 will help open a new sports changing pavilion in Tunbridge Wells next month.

Former right-back George Cohen and local MP and business secretary Greg Clark will open Langton Green CSA's new £500,000 state-of-the-art facility next Saturday (September 3).

The facility, made possible with a £384,500 grant from the Premier League & The FA Facilities Fund, comprises two team changing rooms, two officials' changing rooms, a clubroom, kitchen facilities, storage equipment and spectator toilets.

Cohen led the Tonbridge Angels to Kent Senior Cup glory as manager during the 1974-75 season and currently lives in Tunbridge Wells.
